HJC to Offer Tool Engineering Program

A new, fully accredited, two-year curriculum in tool engineering will be offered at Harbor college for the first time this February, Raymond J. Casey, college director, announced today.

The curriculum, which includes courses in mathematics, mechanics, drafting, physics and other subjects, will be offered during both day and evening sessions.

Made possible through a joint effort of the education committee of the American Society of Tool Engineers, Chapter 84, and local college administrators, the purpose of the program is to provide educational opportunity for students who wish to become tool engineers and for men employed in the machine tool industry who are seeking self-improvement.

The vocation of tool engineering is highly important to modern society because it is responsible for the planning and preparation of the machines, tools, and equipment necessary to perform the complex operations that make modern low-cost mass production possible.

John R. Quier, a senior member of the American Society of Tool Engineers and an instructor in the Division of Applied Technology at Harbor, is in charge of the new curriculum, in which many other instructors will also participate.

Registration for tool engineering and for all other curricula at Harbor is now in progress. A complete schedule of classes may be obtained by calling at the college, 1111 Figueroa place, Wilmington.

UC Offers Local Real Estate Class

Plans for two real estate courses to be offered in Redondo this spring have been announced by University of California Extension.

The local courses, and those being offered in 14 other communities, are presented by the University in cooperation with the California Division of Real Estate, the Education Committee of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, and the California Real Estate Association, according to Karl Venter, who heads the program.

The courses will meet at Redondo Union High School, Diamond and Pacific Coast hwy., for 12 weekly meetings, from 7 to 9:30 p.m. Joseph Chase, realtor, will instruct a class in Real Estate Practice, beginning February 11 and starting February 13. Whyllie Somers, appraiser, will teach a course in Property Management.

Registration for these classes is currently being accepted by mail at University of California Extension offices, 813 South Hill st., Los Angeles 14, and through the first week of each class, space permitting.

General information concerning all spring classes is available in a class bulletin which may be obtained without charge at the Hill Street Extension Center.

Humorous Speech Contest Slated

Festival of fun in district 51, will be the theme of the second annual humorous speech contest when Toastmasters of District 51 will take the opportunity to host their wives.

The district governor, Ralph Lines, will call the meeting to order promptly at 7 p.m. on Saturday, January 25 at the Cavalier room of the Lafayette hotel in Long Beach. The hospitality hour will be at 6:30 p.m. Scallop of Veal Marsala with Risotto Rice will be served.

After dinner the best humorous speaker of each of the seven areas in the district will vie with each other for the distinction of representing the district in the zone D speech contest to be held at Disneyland hotel on June 14. Toastmaster of the evening will be John Clauser the district administration lieutenant governor and the speakers are as follows: Syd Dawson, Larry Mitchell, Scotty Finley, Frank Satariano, Tom Gallagher, H. D. "Doug" Jones, and Bart Hewitt.

Taxpayer Aid Needed for Budget Cuts

By Senator Richard Richards

The new State Budget, which will be worked out in a month-long session beginning on March 3, is going to require real leadership and the most painstaking scrutiny if we are to effect the economies that are clearly in order at this time.

This need will be all the more urgent in view of the fact that we are faced with a possible budget of deficiency of between $100,000,000 and $150,000,000 next year.

That meaningful economies can be achieved through firm and careful direction has been forcefully illustrated in the State of Connecticut, where two years ago the Governor ordered department heads to cut operating costs by $5,000,000, and subsequently succeeded in saving $7,000,000.

Here in California, of course, our problem is vastly more complicated by reason of our explosively expanding population and the need to keep essential state services in line with this unprecedented growth.

Nevertheless, the same spirit and the same approach would undoubtedly reveal areas where similar savings could be effected here in California as well as in Connecticut, in spite of differing conditions as between the two states.

There is rampant in the country a fallacious theory, reflected on every level of government, local through federal, that simply because we are a relatively wealthy country the answer to any of our problems is to be found in spending more money.

If tax savings are really to be effected, this fallacy must be exploded, and the burden of altering this way of thinking rests not only upon the elected representatives of the people. It rests also upon the leaders of every community and upon the taxpayers themselves, who must take sufficient interest in proposed budgets to give their lawmakers informed opinion as to where government expenditures can and should be cut.

This desire to cut expenditures and achieve tax savings must be aggressively and specifically supported, not merely with catch phrases and slogans but with thought-out positions backed thoroughly by public opinion.

At the same time, the tendency of spokesmen for any single group-interest to demand economies at the expense of another group-interest must be offset by judicious consideration as to what is best for the state economy as a whole.

Thus elected officials are in no way relieved of responsibility for making the ultimate decisions, and there is no question but what we face some difficult ones in putting together a budget for the coming year.

In accordance with the constitutional amendment approved by the voters at the last general election, the Legislature will meet this year on February 3 and 4 for the introduction of the budget bill, and will then recess until March 3 for the remainder of the 30-day period during which the budget may be considered.

Local Chiropractor Addresses Students

The Los Angeles College of Chiropractic has invited Dr. Roy R. C. Sanderson, prominent local chiropractor, to deliver an address at the next meeting of its student body, Thursday morning, January 23.

Dr. Sanderson graduated from LACC in 1947 and has been practicing in this area since that time.

The college has moved its facilities to Glendale, where it has developed into one of the most outstanding chiropractic colleges in the nation.

Dr. Sanderson said that the students had preferred that he speak on the subject of "The Problems of the Chiropractor during his first year in practice."
