

Harbor College Welcomes 605 Frosh Classmen

Over 650 entering freshmen, or Alphas, are being welcomed to day and evening classes at Harbor College during Alpha Week, now in progress at the college.

The Week's activities began with a get-acquainted assembly, College student leaders Don Derouin, Richard Parsons, Carol Moon, Vance Van Horn, Ralph Guillian, Dick Moon, Linda Saphn, Judi Drake, Karen Gould, and Carole Dennis were introduced; campus activities were summarized; procedures for running for class office were explained; and questions from the floor were answered.

Today the Student Activities Conference will acquaint Alphas, and the student body generally, with key college personnel and with the purposes and activities of all campus organizations. The week's activities will culminate tomorrow in a campus center Pizza Party, followed by the Harbor-Porterville game, the first night game ever played at the college and the first to use the arc floodlights erected last year on each side of the football field.

TEACHERS MET BOARD MEMBERS at the annual President's Tea held recently on the campus of El Camino College. Instructor Al Greenleaf and his wife, Norma, of Torrance, chat with Seymour Rayor and Dr. Wallace Fraser, members of the College Board of Trustees in the North Patio of the Campus Center.

Phone Co. Now Works on Anti-Missile Missile

A new anti-missile-missile system is now being designed by the Bell Telephone Laboratories, research and development arm of the Bell System, local Pacific Telephone manager R. S. Fyle announced this week.

Named the Nike-Zeus, it will be an entirely different breed of missile system. It is being designed and built with but one goal in mind: the interception and destruction of inter-continental ballistic missiles.

The missile, named after the supreme deity of Greek mythology, is the third in a family of Army ground-to-air defense missiles. Forerunners of the anti-missile-missile are Nike Ajax, which is now guarding major strategic and industrial areas in the Southland, and the Nike-Hercules, which supplements the Ajax with greater range and nuclear warhead capability.
