Medical Care For Military Kin Outlined

Army medical authorities met with those of other services at the Fort MacArthur hospital this week to map plans for aiding in the care of military dependents, in the wake of the recent announcement by the Department of Defense that "Medi-Care" will be curtailed beginning Oct. 1.

MediCare is a short term for dependent medical care by private doctors and hospitals for which the government subsidized payment. It was inaugurated to alleviate the demands for medical assistance by dependents on military facilities.

As a result of the meeting, it was recommended that the Army post in San Pedro increase the medical staff by five physicians, 10 nurses and 20 enlisted assistants to help meet the need for dependent medical care. This increase would mean that 25 beds could be added to the present capacity of 60 at the hospital.

Fort MacArthur has the only facility in the greater Los Angeles area capable of providing immediate medical care for the families of military people.
