Ryan Firebee Sets Record

All records for endurance and altitude by production Navy target aircraft were broken by a Ryan KDA-4 Firebee in a flight at the Naval Air Missile Test Center, Point Mugu, Ryan Aeronautical Company officials were notified this week.

The KDA-4, latest production model of the famed 500-mile-an-hour remote-controlled target, attained an altitude in excess of 48,000 feet and remained in the air one hour, 18 minutes, all but seven minutes of which was powered flight. This target was powered by a Fairchild J44 turbojet engine.

On fuel depletion, the target glided to 14,000 feet, where parachute recovery into the ocean was commanded by the remote controller. The target was retrieved from the sea and a third parachute decal was added to its fuselage, indicating its third successful mission. Individual Firebees have made as many as 19 flights in constant re-use as targets.
