Rare Antique Clocks to Be On Display Here

From Jan. 1 to 10, Southwest Savings and Loan invites the public to its lobby to see one of the most famous and valuable collections of unusual clocks in the country. The rare timepieces on display are a far-flung representation of many lands. Included among those shown are a dragon's head, fortress, plectrifier, and satellite clock. Others are an original design of Jesus and Mary at the well, pink French candelabra and clock set dated 1800, a hand carved Dutch case, French movement made about 1710, skeleton clock, Gothic design which is one of the first clocks made 250 years ago with two hands, Emperor Franz Joseph's Munster clock, first Italian Pendulum clock, first Italian Pendulum clock made in 1540, French carriage clocks, rotary world clock, leaf clock, a Swiss automaton with articulated figure of a woman striking the gong when a lever is pressed. St. James Cathedral shaped clock from London about 1880, Moses in a basket being rescued by the Pharaoh's daughter from 1889, Neapolitan clock, Queen Isabella knighting Columbus clock and dozens more. The entire exhibit will be divided proportionately between Southwest Savings' Inglewood and Torrance offices so that a visit to both locations will take in the collection. The remarkable clocks are loaned to Southwest Savings through the courtesy of Charles Brown, nationally prominent collector.

"Anastasia" Is Yule Production at ECC Theater

"Anastasia," El Camino College's annual fall play, opens in the campus theatre tonight with a cast headed by Natelle Lamkin and Barbara Foster. Cast in the three-act melodrama along with Misses Lamkin and Foster are Jack Meeks, Gary Shaffer, Richard Loemas, Joseph D'Agosta, James Packard, Allan Bourhenne, and Michael Hector representing the male cast, while Margery Ruth, Lee Lowry, and Anita Menclaus round out the distaff side. Directed by Burnett Ferguson and his assistant Barbara D'Agosta, "Anastasia" is the hypothetical account of what happened to the sole surviving member of the Russian Royal Family butchered by the Bolsheviks in 1918.

Planning Boss Gets Top Post

Bert M. Lynn, president of the Torrance Planning Commission, was elected first vice president of the Southern California Planning Commission, according to an announcement by President-elect Leslie S. Storrs of Santa Monica. Lynn has been a director of the group, which includes planning Commissioners from San Diego to San Diego, for the past three years. He has been a member of the Torrance Planning Commission for six years, three years of which he has served as president. Born in Mt. Vernon, New York, Lynn graduated from Alfred University as a ceramic engineer, class of 1938. He is a veteran of four years with the Navy and saw most of his service in the Pacific. He formerly owned the Lynn Brick Company of Harbor City and lives with his wife, Lillian "Chickie," and sons, Bryan, 9 and Barton, 5, at 1208 Greenwood.

Don't leave electric irons plugged in the Allstate Safety Crusade cautions. Idle, connected irons have caused many home fires attributed to electric wiring and equipment.
