'Hick Town' Cure Up to Residents, Councilman Says

Torrance residents should decide whether they want a "hick town" or not.
That was the declaration of Councilman J. A. Beasley in discussing the need to start planning for a new Civic Auditorium in the civic center.
He urged that city officials start thinking of some plans for constructing such a building either through a bond issue or lease purchase plan on grounds that the present auditorium has been outgrown.
In reply to a question by Mayor Albert Isen, as to where the money is coming from, Beasley replied:
"If the people want a hick town, let 'em have it."

"Traffic law enforcement is not a game between police and motorists," says E. R. Klamm, accident prevention director, Allstate Insurance Companies. "A person has a morbid sense of humor who finds it amusing to violate traffic laws as much as he can without getting caught."
