Union Rejected by Employees of Torrance Firm

Two unions were overwhelmingly rejected by Harvey Aluminum employees in a National Labor Relations Board election, Sunday.

Of the more than 1600 persons voting, 1082 rejected any union affiliation; 45 favored the International Association of Machinists, and 594 voted in favor of joining the United Steel Workers.

A company spokesman attributed the pro-company balloting as an indication of good working conditions at the plant coupled with recent exposure of labor scandals.
