A $1,920,000 contract has been awarded Ryan Aeronautical Company's Electronics Division by the U. S. Navy for additional spare parts and other support equipment for the Model APN-122(V) Doppler Radar Navigator. Ryan is currently producing these systems for a wide range of naval aircraft under an initial $20 million letter of intent received last October.

The APN-122(V) is a self-contained system that automatically and continuously computes and displays ground speed and drift angle without the aid of ground station, wind estimates or true air-speed data. These systems are scheduled to be installed in the Martin P5M seaplane; the Douglas A3D-20 twin jet attack bomber; Lockheed's P2V Neptune and W-2 airborne early warning plane; and three types of Grumman aircraft.

Ryan's Electronics Division develops and produces Doppler automatic navigational systems, ground velocity indicators, helicopter hovering devices and missile guidance systems.

What you should know about the Federal "Fair Trade Law" and What You Should Do About It NOW!

The Facts:

Congress is discussing a so-called Federal "fair trade law" now. It is called the Harris Bill (H.R. 1253).

What does the law try to do? According to the authoritative New York Times: "Put most simply, the bill would make it a Federal offense for any retailer to sell a product for a price below that set by its manufacturer, provided only that the product has for some time been part of a 'shipment in commerce.'"

Why is Congress considering such a law? Apparently because 19 states have upset so-called Fair Trade laws and the proponents would like to have the Federal government pass and try to enforce such a law and evade the will of the states.

Who is opposed to the bill? The bill holds a treat of higher prices for everybody. It means that we can't sell you every day items at what we consider fair prices, but must instead charge you what someone thousands of miles from here says is "fair." Many such "fair trade" prices would include exorbitant profits.

What would it mean to you? The United States Department of Justice is vigorously opposed to the bill. In a statement before the House Committee on Interstate Commerce on March 23, the Department bitterly attacked the bill. It said that:

- (1) the bill would substitute "federal mandate for state or local discretion in the vital area of how much all Americans pay for products needed for daily living";
- (2) the bill would accomplish its ends "at the cost of higher prices to consumers";

Who else is opposed to the bill? The Justice Department reported to Congress on a survey made in 1956 covering 132 popular household purchases from toilet articles to household appliances. It shows, said the Justice Department, that consumers in non fair trade cities were able to buy their needs at savings ranging from 7% to 32%.

Organized labor is also opposed to the bill.

Frankly, we are, and so are super markets in all parts of the country. A responsible store owner estimates it will add $250 a year in costs to every family budget. But even beyond the higher cost, we are opposed to any law that makes it a Federal law to sell for the lowest possible price.

We believe we should be able to pass along to our customers the benefits of mass buying, of mass selling—of efficient operation.

We believe you want low prices—arrived at through the competitive system that has made America the best fed nation for the lowest possible price in the world.

What should you do about it, now?

First of all—think the problem out for yourself; will you be better off if prices are kept low through local competition—or should there be a Federal law which permits them to be kept at an artificially high level?

Then, make your opinion known to your Senators and Congressmen. Tell them you are opposed to the "fair trade" bill H.R. 1253—and tell them why. Post cards will do—letters are better. But do it now—It's your business, take care of it now!
