PHYSICALLY HANDICAPPED GET SELF-HELP DEVICE

Self-help devices, often the simplest of gadgets, can make the difference between a life of dependency and one of self-sufficiency to a physically handicapped person, announced the Southern California Chapter of The Arthritis and Rheumatism Foundation today. A new permanent display of self-help devices has been prepared by the Chapter showing many eating, dressing and house-keeping aids, as well as aids for grooming, personal hygiene and recreation. Such devices are designed as "instruments that help a handicapped person perform actions he otherwise would be unable to accomplish." The wheel chair is a common self-help device. So is a long-handled comb which permits an arthritic to comb his own hair even though pain and joint stiffness may prevent raising his hand to his head. Specialized self-help devices and furnishings have been incorporated into kitchens and other rooms so that the homemaker disabled by arthritis can clean, cook, sew, wash and perform other normal household chores. Thus these devices are of tremendous importance in helping arthritics care for themselves and others by restoring them to a life of normal activity. The Arthritis Self-Help Device Office in the Institute of Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation in New York, supported by a grant from the Arthritis and Rheumatism Foundation, continually screens and tests gadgets as they appear on the market. The Office also collects ideas and suggestions for new devices. Information about the Self-Help Device Office and the availability of many of the gadgets may be obtained from the Arthritis and Rheumatism Foundation, Southern California Chapter, 8576 Wilshire Boulevard, Beverly Hills, OL 5-7124.

Portable Oxygen Now Being Used

A handy portable medical oxygen supply, for use in emergencies, is now being marketed throughout the United States and Canada by distributors of Linde Company, Division of Union Carbide Corporation. Called Lif-O-Gen, the oxygen unit provides approximately 7 gallons of pure gaseous oxygen, U.S.P. Extremely compact in size, it is only 11 inches high, 3 inches in diameter, and weighs only 20 ounces. The unit is easy to use. Oxygen can be administered instantly by merely pressing a push button on the top of the container. If desired, a disposable face mask, included with the unit, can be attached to the outlet. Oxygen flow can be administered intermittently or continuously as desired. When empty, the container is disposable. In emergencies requiring oxygen, speed of availability is of critical importance. These lightweight, inexpensive units can easily be stored in strategic locations throughout factories, restaurants, offices, and public buildings where they will be immediately available to aid anyone in a respiratory crisis. The units can be stored virtually indefinitely without loss of effectiveness. A leading medical journal states, "A free volume gallon of oxygen comfortably contained in a pair of adult human lungs will be sufficient to sustain life for sixteen minutes. One free volume gallon of air in the lungs sustains the same person for less than three minutes."

Torrance Group at Yule Event

David Bryan (2 yrs. 4 mos.), son of Mr. and Mrs. J. deMiranda of 4921 Macafee Road; Wendy Susan (1 yr. 6 mos.), daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Vroman, 3217 Carson; Torrance, were among one hundred and fifty-seven members of the Baby Alumni Association of Southern California who attended the annual Christmas party given last Sunday, Dec. 13, by Queen of Angeles Hospital. Activities included a chance for each child to visit with Santa Claus. Refreshments, toys, caroling, and parties also were featured. The party is given annually for babies born at Queen of Angeles Hospital, and is under auspices of the Queen's Association of Parents, Children, and Sisters, an organization which conducts educational lectures and programs for parents.

Champions Head Top TV Teams

Five top teams will be featured on the Bell Telephone Hour colorcast special Friday, Jan. 15, 1960, on the NBC-TV network, 7:30 to 9:30 p. m. Marge and Rover Champion, Jose and Amparo Turbi, Shellah and Gordon MacRae, Les Paul and Mary Ford and Dorothy Collins and Raymond Scott are the headliners. Donald Voorhes will direct the Bell Symphony Orchestra. The Champions have been seen in TV motion pictures and night clubs in their duo-dance creations. Jose Turbi and his sister, Amparo, have played widely, both alone and as a two-piano team. Shellah and Gordon MacRae have been highly successful in their night club act together.
