Kids Make Like Post Office Help

The Post Office, from the days of the pony express down to present automatic equipment, is the topic of discussion these days in Mrs. Ethel Sundell's class at Yukon School. The youngsters also created their own Post Office, buying stamps and figuring out various computations necessary for sending mail. They wrote letters and did considerable research to find out how the mail gets around.

Naval Records Donated to College Library

Library facilities of El Camino College will be enriched in the near future when 192 bound copies of Naval Institute Proceedings are placed on the shelves. The Proceedings, a gift of Cedric W. Windas, artist and writer of Hermosa Beach, were presented to president Stuart E. Marsee by Mr. and Mrs. Windas. "I have much pleasure in offering to your college my entire library of Naval Institute Proceedings magazines, dating from 1944 to October of this year," Mr. Windas wrote the college in offering the magazines to the library. "As I receive more current issues, I will turn them over to your librarian, thus keeping you up-to-date," he continued. What is described as the most authentic nautical history available is included in the volumes. The unbiased publications contain information ranging from up-to-the minute reports of ships and sailors to ante-Revolution and 19th century reviews. The donor describes the Proceedings as, "An accumulative treasure-chest of nautical knowledge any student should relish." A former newspaperman, Windas served as staff cartoonist of the Los Angeles Express before the metropolitan daily merged with the Los Angeles Herald. He was also active with the staffs of newspapers in Melbourne, Australia, and in Honolulu. His work has appeared in 46 national magazines. Findings of vital importance to the nation's health in respect to cancer and other diseases are expected to result from the Life History Research Study recently begun by the American Cancer Society. The six-year study will require 70,000 volunteers and will encompass half a million families over the nation.
