Coffee Wants Benefit Returned to the States

Speaking to Republican groups in Rolling Hills this week, GOP Congressional nominee Tom Coffee came up with some specific recommendations on this country's unbearable tax load.

The endorsed Republican candidate, Coffee set fourth "specific steps that I will propose enacted into law to help the present situation."

He emphasized that "the states are reduced to the role of poor relations in the tax situation by the vicious raids on the taxpayers' pocket made by the federal government. In little ways, the federal government has forced the states to tax where it hurts the poorest taxpayer most, on sales and medicines and through a series of license fees and nuisance taxes."
