

1960 Queen Will Be Sought by Los Angeles Press Club

The Greater Los Angeles Press Club today extended an invitation to all single women in Southern California, 21 or over, to enter the 13th annual contest for the selection of Miss Press Club.

The winner, to be chosen and crowned at the grand opening of the Press Club's new home Saturday evening, July 2, will be official hostess at all major Press Club functions throughout the year.

In recognition of the widespread membership drawn from the more than 400 newspapers and radio and television stations in the Southland, the club is departing from the traditional selection of its Queen from among the TV and movie starlets of Hollywood.

This year girls in every community of Southern California may participate.

Each contestant must submit two photographs (full length and closeup of face), along with brief biography listing age, height, weight, education, and employment experience, plus a short statement outlining the reason she wishes to be chosen Miss Press Club for 1960.
