

Vets Picked... But

Braves' Ace Not Named to All-Stars

By Gary Palmer
Either do things right or don't do them at all is an oft heard phrase, but apparently the adage is not a fast rule, in the world of baseball.

starting teams picked. Managers Walt Alston of the National League and Al Lopez of the American named the remainder of the squads last week, but one name in particular was missing from the National League's roster.

That of Warren Spahn, the veteran left-hander of the Milwaukee mound staff. Lopez, out of courtesy more than anything, named Ted Williams to the AL squad and Alston reciprocated by picking Stan Musial to a reserve berth. Both are in the twilight of illustrious careers, as is Spahn, the winningest left-hander in National League history.

Not Recognized
Yet Spahn, the only active player, other than Williams and Musial, "assured" of a spot in Baseball's Hall of Fame when he retires, was not accorded the same courtesy as his fellow greats. None of the three are having exceptionally good years. In fact, all are rather mediocre at this stage of the season, but if sentimental favoritism is to be shown in the annual classic that pits the N.L. stars against the cream of the A.L. crop, Warren Spahn should have received the same accoladed payed Williams and Musial.
