Women Continue Fight Against Polio

Thursday evening, members of the Junior Woman's Club of Wilmington were out in force to prevent the spread of polio by sponsoring a polio clinic.

Of 383 attending the clinic, 208 persons received their first shot. 16 per cent of these people were over 40 years of age. "The Juniors were happy to see more of this age group responding," Mrs. James Hartley, prexy, said.

For Thursday's clinic, shots were administered by Drs. Lily Chen, Peter Cheng, G. H. Quillen, Richard Stellar, and William J. Eckerle. They were assisted by members of the Junior and Senior Woman's Clubs.

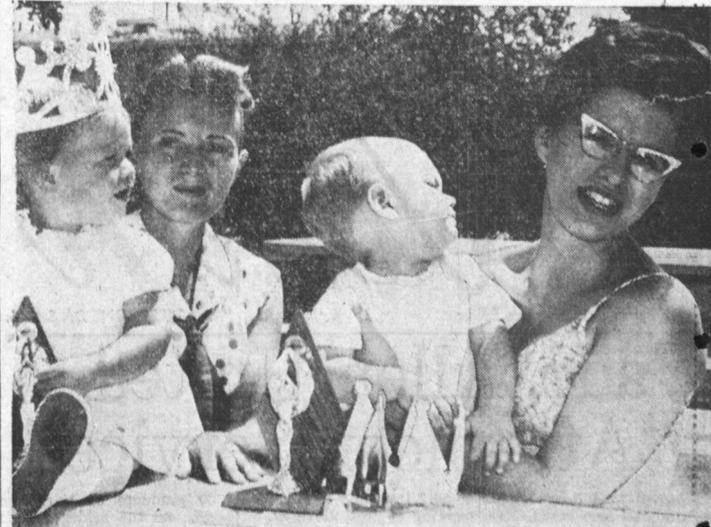

Children were given balloons by the "Balloon Man," Pete Aguirre. The Wilmington Kiwanis Club underwrote the cost of shots for those unable to pay.

The Juniors have scheduled their next clinic for Thursday, Sept. 15 at the Wilmington Woman's Clubhouse, Lakme and Denni. The time will again be 6:30 to 9:30 p.m., and there will be a donation of $1.

This clinic will provide those receiving first shots Aug. 4 and 18 a chance to get their second shot. Under the stepped up vaccination program from the State Department of Health, those who received second shots Aug. 18 may also receive their third shot in September.

The program under the new plan is as follows: A second injection two weeks after the first and a third injection four weeks after the second. A booster is recommended for all those previously vaccinated.

Area Boy Scouts Attend Sessions Studying Speech

Torrance Boy Scouts and Explorers, as well as youth throughout the county, who attended the National Jamboree last month, are eligible for special public training, according to the chairman of the area Council Scout speaker program.

Special sessions to train the Scouts in public speaking are being set up because many Jamboree Scouts are requested to speak before clubs and other groups on their experiences, it was explained.

The weekend of Aug. 27 to 28 will be set aside at Firestone Scout Reservation near Brea for the training. Usually, Scouts may take a public speaking course, led by members of Toastmasters Club, which meets once a week for eight weeks, but to get the Scouts ready for the job ahead, the course is being concentrated into the weekend.

Satisfactory completion of the training, plus a required five-minute speech, will qualify a Scout for the public speaking merit badge. In addition to receiving expert speech instruction, Scouts and Explorers will have the opportunity for swimming and fellowship while at Firestone.
