Employers Here Report Part Time Students Do Well

Torrance High school students who work part-time are generally doing good work, according to a recent report by 330 employers to the Board of Education here.

More than 90 per cent of the employers felt that the students were adequately prepared in English, math, and general job skills, the report indicates.

In rating the students' performances as a whole, employers said 19 per cent were outstanding, 53 per cent good, 26 per cent average, and two per cent below average.

Students worked in more than 70 different types of jobs, including such positions as box boys, clerks, service station attendants, stock boys, Always slow down when facing oncoming headlight glare, says the Allstate Safety Crusade. Since you can't see as well with the glare, you need the reduced speed to give you greater control of the car.

cooks, truck drivers, orderlies, janitors, receptionists, and others. One student made lampshades, while another was assigned to task of feeding birds.

Most employers felt that their students could accept responsibility, honest, and discreet, and could work without being closely supervised. Two-thirds indicated that they felt the students were interested in doing a good job not only because of pay.
