New Iron Source Will Supplement

Purchase of iron ore properties in Nevada was announced today by J. D. McCall, president of Columbia Iron Mining Company, a subsidiary of United States Steel, as part of a continuing long-range raw materials requirements program for steelmaking.

Negotiations were completed and deeds have been recorded at Fallon for the transfer of holdings of Mineral Materials Co. of Alhambra, Calif., and American Exploration and Mining Co. of San Francisco. The properties are located in the mineral basin area of Pershing and Churchill Counties, southeast of Lovelock.

These properties provide a new reserve of iron ore to supplement existing sources in meeting future needs for the western steelmaking furnaces of U. S. Steel's Columbia-Geneva Division.

The purchase includes 16 patented lode mining claims and 46 unpatented lode and placer mining claims.

Exploration drilling was conducted at the site during 1960 and samples of iron ore were tested at the Colorado School of Mines Research Foundation at Golden, Colorado.

Columbia Iron Mining Company also has acquired the Magnetic Ore Processing Plant of Mineral Materials Co., located at the Buena Vista Mine on the same property.
