

Vivid Off-Beat Colors Are Exciting

This Spring the color story in little girl dresses is all-important. The pastel blues and pinks of previous seasons look dull and uninteresting against the newer and vivid off-beat shades.

Lilac is the all-out favorite. Every little girl should have at least one lilac dress for '61. Greens run a close second. Vivid lettuce green is the liveliest shade. Mint green is a close cousin to this. Next comes gold shades which made their debut in Fall and continue strong.

Fruit shades are headline news. Everyone is talking about the "hot orange" trend. Yellows come in banana, lime and lemon editions. Melon shades look especially lovely. Reds go to raspberry and pimento versions.

In the darker shades, it is navy of course. Navy is perennially popular and this year navy dresses are often styled in the new Sanforized-Plus solid color broadcloth. These particular fabrics must necessarily be of superior construction to most broadcloths, so they not only wear well, but have a lustrous finish that is as lovely to touch as to look at.

Daintiest of the navy dresses are eyelet trimmed. Pettiskirts of eyelet, eyelet blouses, or Peter Pan collars and cuffs give a frothy "iced" touch to the navy that is most feminine. White embroidery, usually cross-stitching, in broad bands, style other navy frocks. And of course, there are middy and sailor interpretations which carry an air of adventure with them.

Colors make these new clothes exciting, but the actual cotton fabrics in which they are styled are attention-getting too. Everybody loves the new tapestry-like cottons with the traditional Greek floral scrolls picked out in white against color. Cloky piques are done in two colors, as are corded stripes and sometimes one of these stripes adds a jacquard treatment. Baby checks and geometrics found out this two-colored group, and the fact they are all marked Sanforized-Plus promises continued satisfaction in service all through the life off he garment.

Cottons that defy the silk editions for beauty are the repps and Ottoman types. They make lush party-going frocks, and effectively tailor suits in the silk tradition. Moreover repps come in prints as well as in plain colors.

Greyfriars Plan Fellowship Dinner

On Thursday March 2 Greyfriars is planning a Fellowship Dinner in the church.

Mrs. Robert Boomer, president of the Guild, is in charge with assistants: Mrs. Ainsley Dougall, Mrs. Petronella Lowe and Mrs. Babs Stout.

Guests of honor at this dinner will be the new members of the church who were received last Sunday morning at a communion service.

Bob Pope, with his Sunday School class, is making plans this week for a Young people's Banquet, to be held March 10.

Services at the Church of the Burning Bush are held at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. with Sunday School at 9:45 a.m.

The pastor will continue his series of services on "The Trustworthiness of the Bible."

Ray Young Named Scholarship Winner By Industrial Education Association

Sophomore Ray Young of El Camino College was named winner of the $100 scholarship of the Los Angeles County Industrial Education Association in ceremonies at the Association's general meeting in Pomona this week.

Young now qualifies as entrant in $100-a-year scholarship competition of the California Industrial Education Association, Southern section.

Winner of this scholarship will be announced in March at the Association's Fresno meeting after a selection has been made from the 11 junior college chapters in the southern area.

"We feel that Young is one of the most outstanding candidates ever to represent El Camino College and the Los Angeles County Association," Ted Elmgren, coordinator of technical arts at El Camino, said following Young's presentation at the Pomona meeting.

The scholarship program has been established specifically for students preparing themselves as teachers in the industrial arts field. Primary studies completed by Young in this area include general woodworking, drafting, electrical and welding.

Les Golgart, industrial arts instructor with whom Young has done much of his training, lauds Young as one of the finest students in the Tech Arts program and, additionally, a hard worker.

CAMELLIAS

It is possible to move Camellias while in bloom, preferably before the new growth starts.

SCHOLARSHIP WINNER receives helpful information from instructor Ted Elmgren. Winner of an Industrial Education Scholarship, Young was honored at a dinner meeting last week.

Edison Company to Give Free Electric Blanket With Clothes Dryer Purchase

You can have a free electric blanket — courtesy of Southern California Edison Company—with the purchase of an electric clothes dryer during a concentrated two-month promotional campaign now under way, according to G. L. Blanchard, district manager for the power company. "People who buy an electric dryer or combination washer-dryer from one of the local participating appliance dealers prior to April 1 will receive an electric blanket from Edison—free as a bonus," Blanchard announced. This is the first time that Edison and other major utilities have joined with distributors and dealers in an area-wide marketing program such as this, he pointed out. The event is being coordinated by the Electric League of Southern California.
