El Camino Dramatists to Construct Theater Model

Working with a replica of the Shakespearean theatre as its guide, the stage production crew of El Camino College is constructing a model of the Globe Theatre stage for the forthcoming play "Romeo and Juliet."

will record a trumpet fanfare, to be played at fifteen minute intervals before the commencement of the play.

The production will be presented to the public in the Campus Theater April 7, 8, 14 and 15 with curtain time at 8:30 p.m.

SHS Students Win Awards In Forensic Meet

South High students, interested in speech, participated in a novice Forensic Tournament at Aviation High School late last month.

Under the direction of Les Thomas, adviser the stage crew has been working on the reconstruction of the Globe Theatre since early September in order to finish for the final rehearsals of the production.

Those students winning excellence awards were: original oratory, Clara Gillenberg and Nanci Carroll; dramatic interpretation, Richard Vagi and Jane Cobabe; humorous interpretation, Calvin Kindshi and Yvonne Boggio; impromptu, Bill Latham, Richard Vogl, Mike Grove and Irene Hansen.

As the Elizabethan stage extended into the audience, the EC stage will extend over the orchestra pit. The effect of the audience on three sides of the front stage will be used. The setting will be permanent and is scheduled to be used in other Shakespearean productions in future years.

Susan Halback received a gold medal in humorous interpretation.

Dinner Entrees Named After Journalists

The Pen & Quill restaurant in Manhattan Beach—which derives its journalistic name from owner Bob Reuben, ex-foreign correspondent whose bylines once were the capitals of Europe, the Orient and the South Pole—has named a number of dinner entrees after news reporters with culinary interests.

The Romeo and Juliet play will use only five of the seven acting areas of the original set. Only two of the three levels will be reconstructed in the Campus Theatre for the April play.

Those saluted on the new Pen & Quill menu include Ed Murrow, Clete Roberts, Chet Huntley, John Winchess, Jack Latham, Art Ryon, Lowell Thomas and Drew Pearson.

To coincide with the Shakespearean way of announcing a play, the music department

"A large amount of structural engineering, in order to withstand the weight of people on the balcony, and a great deal of detailed work went into the setting," commented Howard M. Banks, director of the play. The setting will be permanently stationed until after the April performances.

Next step will be weighing in the students' high school records to obtain composite scores, from which semi-finalists will be selected. Then, local selection boards, comprised of educators, business and civic leaders, will narrow the field to three finalists from each of the Edison company's six geographical divisions.

Local Students Enter Quarter Finals in Scholarship Contest

The final selection board will then pick winners of 10 four-year scholarships to begin in the academic year 1961-62.

Edison scholarship winners will receive $500 per year toward tuition and expenses at their choice of 12 private colleges, Blanchard pointed out. Edison will also make direct grants of $750 per year to each winning student's college as the company's way of helping private schools combat spiralling costs, he said.
