Pale, Lightweight Shoes Complement New Fashions

Fashion steps into the bright sunlight this Spring in an array of new pointed toe leather shoes. New ideas start from the ground up in a handsome collection of soft, delicate leather textures in both pale, neutral tones and bright light colors. Black and white, in patent leather, calf and kid, are given interesting detail treatments.

When shoes set the pace for a costume, they create a happy fashion mood. Soft, nappy suede pumps, speak of head-to-toe femininity. Gayly colored, smooth and grained calf shoes reflect the sun's sparkle; fine kid pumps in bone or lustre leathers in pale blue or green grape give the "oh the town" stamp to cocktail dresses or suits.

For after-five—kid and reptile leathers combined in a novel pump with harlequin cutouts and stacked leather heels are new, as are slim, lustre leather pumps with three inch high stiletto heels and glittering toes set with tiny jewels.

Light leather pumps with darker embroidered stitching around the shoe throatline, and a petal embroidered silhouette on the tapered toe will perk up suits or dresses. A trim leather sole "frames" the lovely tapered look of these narrow-toed shoes.

Two colors—particularly in contrasting hues—suggest a sporty casual costume. For example, flat casuals with a light taffy-toned smooth leather vamp are matched to a darker briar brown lightly grained leather.

Two-tone boot shoes with high rising vamps and light-toned, trimly-tapered toes and a pixie-ish thong tie, conjure up a gamine-like air to literally put a spring in your step!

OVERCROWDING
As tall bearded Iris go out of bloom this month, the gardener should check the clumps to see if they are overcrowded. If it's been three years since you last divided them, chances are that the time has come once again. If the divided rhizomes are to be replanted in the same bed, renew the soil with liberal amounts of steer manure. Even better, use steer manure and some new soil from another part of the garden where Iris were not grown.

Spring Salute to Fashions by HJC

Saluting spring with a word of fashion, the Harbor College Circle K Club will present a fashion show for the public this Thursday, May 4, at 8 p.m. in the college gymnasium.

The show will feature the latest warm-weather styles for both men and women and will have as its theme "Fashion Fiesta," in honor of the coming Mexican holiday "Cinco de Mayo."

No admission charge will be asked for the event, which will present music and entertainment, as well as free refreshments and the newest apparel of the southland.

All fashions will be shown by courtesy of Desmond's of Long Beach. Women models will be Harbor College coeds, and men models will be members of the Circle K Club. Entertainment will feature the Endigos Band, a new group from the Harbor Area, and solos by Ron Skyers and Shari Church, both of the college.

Hobo Dance Slated For Square Links

Annual Hobo Dance held by the Square Links is planned for May 14 at the American Legion Hall, 1109 Border Ave., Torrance.

At 5:30 p.m. chow will be served and from 6:30 until 9:30 p.m., there will be dancing. Caller is Hoppy Hopkins.

For the best dressed "hobo" there will be prizes awarded. Beginners class close this Sunday, May 7. Anyone wishing information may call George Ingersoll, FA 8-5724. Class dances from 2 until 5 p.m. at the Gardena Barn, 15016 Daphne Ave., Gardena.

In black, sand or lilac they are available in sizes 8 to 16, under $6. Natural straw basket is about $4.50. All articles are available at J. C. Penny.

CHURCH WOMEN SET FELLOWSHIP DAY

Fellowship Day is scheduled by the United Church Women at the First Baptist Church of Torrance at 10 a.m. Friday, May 5.

The business session will be held at 10 a.m. and a sack lunch-time at 12 noon. The program will begin at 1 p.m. with Mrs. Robert Dehn addressing the women on the

LUXURY LOOK

Wood paneling a home is the quickest and least expensive way to give that touch of luxury and comfort. Prestige woods like west coast hemlock add just the right look.

Women of the area have been invited to attend the Fellowship Day meeting.
