More U.S. Schooling for Foreign Students

It's common knowledge to all reading this piece that the Soviet Union has infiltrated the Western Hemisphere; in Cuba recently the Communists attempted, and partially succeeded, to discredit the United States. They have disrupted the harmony of the countries making up the American States. They have increased the number of pro-Communist organizations in the Western Hemisphere. They have caused Latin American countries to rely on them economically.

To Educators in the United States an important tool exists to meet this challenge, and destroy it, of communism. That instrument is education.

Noted Russian historians and experts at the University of Southern California and the University of California at Los Angeles believe that there is a rising need to bring more students from foreign countries in order for them to realize the merits of democracy.

The men of higher learning know well that the seed of communism is easily planted in colleges and universities through the world. It's here that the "masters of deceit" set the stage. One has but to read of discontent on the front pages of his newspaper, read further in the copy and see that students caused riots, in many cases against Americanism.

By educating the foreign student in freedom, as we in America know it, it stands to reason that he or she will bring our way of life into contact with his or her country.

The nationalist feeling is high among nations just emerging. The Communists use the emotional fervor behind nationalism to gain a foothold. The United States should help perpetuate this enthusiasm, not try and reform the country. Education on all levels is the most effective way to accomplish this.

Nations should be informed that the aid we give them is for themselves and not for the powers who run the government to use for personal gain. Many people in these countries do not know of our economic aid to their nation.

President Kennedy's recent organization, the Peace Corps, is dramatic and different. Foreign countries have expressed their interest in this American gesture. Propaganda wise the Soviets have used this "grand gesture" on many occasions.

On the home front it is important for the individual to get and read such books as J. Edgar Hoover's "Masters of Deceit" and Cleon Skousen's "Naked Communist." These volumes along with many others now on the market, will show you that Communism is really a threat to the American ideals of freedom.
