Schedule Auditions for South Bay Youth Symphony

Auditions will soon be held for membership in the newly formed South Bay Youth Symphony, announced musical director Robert L. Simon this week.

Serious, advanced students who have been seeking a place in which to use their training and abilities in the performance of genuine symphonic music are encouraged to join the orchestra.

Skilled musicians interested in joining the non-profit organization are invited to call FR 9-0829 or FR 3-2182 for audition information and appointments. Those accepted into the orchestra will be asked to submit a registration fee of five dollars that will cover the cost of music and other incidentals for the season.

VOLUNTEER
Director Simon, who has volunteered his professional services, said in a recent interview, "The new Youth Symphony is the only such group in the area. While it will provide great musical enrichment for its members it will at the same time encourage the general development of a cultural tradition in the South Bay."

San Francisco-born and now in Hermosa Beach resident, Simon is not new to working with teen-agers and other young people. He taught instrumental music to various age groups in Fontainebleau, France, following his own training at the Paris Conservatory.
