Physicians More Optimistic Concerning Strokes

By K. H. Sutherland, M.D.

Back in the year 1900, stroke was seventh among the chief causes of death in the United States, now it is third. Although this condition rarely occurs before 45 years of age, virtually anyone past this period of life may be stricken. Fortunately, not all such occurrences are serious.

Many strokes are so slight that no readily apparent physical or mental damage results. These have been called "little strokes" by one eminent physician who also stated that many individuals have them and do not even know it.

Such cerebral vascular accidents, as they are often called, may occur in a number of ways. Chief among them is clot formation in one of the arteries of the brain (cerebral thrombosis), or the blocking of a blood vessel by a clot floating in the blood stream (embolism).

MORE OPTIMISTIC
Physicians are definitely more optimistic than they were in years gone by concerning the effects of treatment in cases of cerebral vascular disease and strokes. This is true even when the damage done by a stroke is extensive.

Although there is no specific cure for strokes, therapy is greatly advanced over former times and most stroke victims including the hemiplegic (paralysis of one side of the body) need not despair.

Good health habits are beneficial also, both to help the condition and to avoid it. The right amount of the proper foods, plenty of rest and sleep, mild exercise, and, in so far as possible, avoidance of worry and anger are strongly recommended. And, in all cases of stroke, medical attention should be obtained immediately.

A pamphlet on strokes, recently issued by the U. S. Public Health Service, will be mailed to anyone sending a card of request to the division of Public Health Education, Los Angeles County Health Department, 241 North Figueroa St., Los Angeles 12.

Decision Casts Doubt On City Ordinances

By Sen. Richard Richards

One of the emergency subjects that now seems almost certain to be included by the Governor in his call for a special session of the Legislature next month is that of vice regulations by agencies of local government.

The emergency arises through a recent decision of the State Supreme Court which casts doubt on city ordinances dealing with vice problems.

The court by a five to two decision held that where attempted regulation pertains to a matter of concern to both municipal and state governments, it must be resolved in favor of the legislative authority of the state.

This is akin to the provision whereby in case of specific conflict between state and federal law, the federal law prevails.

Specifically, it was ruled that the state has occupied the field with regard to the criminal aspects of illegal sexual behavior and prostitution, providing appropriate penalties in each case.

Thus local ordinances imposing additional regulation in the same field can be held invalid.

The result of this court decision has been a demand for tighter control by State government.

Now certainly there is no dichotomy of purpose here. Both State and local legislators are very much concerned with vice problems and want to provide the people of California with maximum protection against these social evils.

The Governor has already asked the Attorney General to file a Petition for Rehearing in the case that gave rise to this situation.

I have no doubt that the whole thing will be resolved to the benefit of the public and that the very high standard of State and local law enforcement will continue.

However, I want to point out in passing that this is one of the problems which can arise when attempting to cover "all things" on a State level.

Very often, local governmental entities are in a much better position to deal with a specific problem than we are at the State level. Therefore, our own State regulations must not be used to vitiate this fact.

Talent Auditions Soon to Be Held in Los Angeles

Audition for top amateur and semi-professional talent to appear on the Los Angeles Bureau of Music Department of Municipal Art, community sing circuit will be held January 12 and 13, in the Police Building Auditorium across from City Hall in the civic center.

Lloyd A. Stone, city music coordinator, said the talent auditions, scheduled for 7 to 10 p.m., on January 12, and 1 to 5 p.m., on January 13, are held twice a year to recruit talent for weekly appearances at more than 15 city-wide community sing programs the Bureau sponsors.

Each audition will be limited to five minutes. All types of acts and talent are wanted with special consideration given to novelty and variety acts. Singers must bring their own music which should be scored simply in the key in which they sing; and accompanist and record player will be provided.

Appointments are necessary for the auditions and must be made by either phone or letter as no personal office visit can be accepted. The Bureau of Music address is room 1306 City Hall, Los Angeles 12, (MADison 4-5211, Ext. 2437).

Union Growth in 10 Year Period High, Says State

"California labor unions gained 400,000 members in the 1950's," John F. Henning, Director of the Department of Industrial Relations, said this week.

According to a report just released by the Department's Division of Labor Statistics and Research, union membership in the State rose from 1,355,000 in 1950 to 1,756,000 in 1960, an increase of 30 percent. The rate of growth in union membership levelled off after the middle of the decade. It averaged 3.6 percent yearly in the first half, but dropped to 1.6 percent in the second half.

Of the 400,000 added members, 130,000 are employed in manufacturing, 82,000 in construction, 88,000 in wholesale and retail trade, and 32,000 in Federal, State, and local government. An estimated 76,000 of the added members are women. Throughout the decade, women members have comprised about a fifth of the total.

"Despite the rapid growth of California unions, membership did not keep pace with the rise in employment," Henning said. "As a result, the proportion of the State's nonfarm workforce that is unionized dropped from 43 percent in 1950 to 36 percent in 1960. Nationally, about 32 percent of nonagricultural wage and salary earners belonged to unions in 1960."

CORRECTION

In rechecking the day-and-night game records for their inaugural season, the Los Angeles Angels made one correction. Their night game mark should be 46-46-34-23 at home and 12-13 on the road. The day marks are 12-13 at home and 12-32 on the road. Overall, the Angels were 46-95 at home and 24-58 on the road.
