The youngsters will study how to use the Bible and how to apply it to their daily living.

Benevolence emphasis of the school will be on ministry to the blind. There is a field trip planned for the second grade classes to the Braille Institute in Los Angeles.

During the school, there will be arts and crafts activities and recreation and refreshments for the students.

"All children who have had no previous church school experience are encouraged to attend," Mrs. Barnes said.

Sermon Stresses Need for Prayer

Mankind's need for prayer based on heartfelt gratitude to God will be brought out at Christian Science church services today.

Highlighting the Lesson-Sermon on the subject of "Love" is the Golden Text from the Bible (I John 4): "God is love; and he that dwelleth in love dwelleth in God, and God in him."

A citation to be read from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy states (p.4): "What we most need is the prayer of fervent desire for growth in grace, expressed in patience, meekness, love, and good deeds."

TRAVEL NOTES FROM THE ORTALES

IN SWITZERLAND

We left via bus to the enchanting village of Leysin, where we ascended the "Top of The World" La Berneuse summit by cable cabins.

This was a charming picture site and certainly one that will be long remembered. An enjoyable Swiss luncheon was served here by village natives. The return ride to our hotel via Col des Mosseo enabled us to see more ancient chateaus and quaint hillside homes.

Our moonlight cruise across Lake Geneva to Evian on the French coast was a refreshing experience. The enclosed motor-launch ride gave us an excellent view of both the French and Swiss coast for comparison.

At the beautiful Casino d'Evian we were served refreshments and later danced to the "Pierre Spiers" orchestra. Many of us then proceeded to gaming rooms where some members of the group chanced a few francs on roulette. The American card games of black jack, poker and especially dice games were missing and consequently the majority of the group did not participate. The return trip to Switzerland was not to be interesting because of many tired individuals at the end of a long day.

Tuesday morning the entire group took advantage of free time and spent it shopping, writing letters or resting and taking in non-scheduled sights.

Just before noon we again boarded a special steamer for a long cruise on Lake Geneva. The hillside vine yards attracted the greater amount of attention because of the unusual method of rowing in tiers which gave a step-like appearance and appeared almost unreal. We could see a great many beautiful chateaus and clean small and large hillside homes. Everything appeared picturesque and reminded one of many paintings of the area views seen at one time or another. Our guide from Swiss travel bureau pointed out the Charlie Chaplin hill-top home and some of the other renowned land sites.

I queried him on status of this area during the two world wars and he explained that the entire Lousanne region was completely untouched and indicated if it were not for many military personnel of other countries, one would not know a war was in progress. An extremely important and interesting fact was the information that this Lake Geneva area was always free from snow and quite moderate climate while the surrounding areas always obtained a great amount of snow and ice. We returned to the hotel at 4 p.m. after passing the Castle of Chillon and Vevey.

The balance of the evening proved to be enjoyable after an elegant meal at the hotel and dancing and music.

Today, July 25th, we had an early breakfast in my hotel room and departed for Rome via Swiss air at 6:30 a.m.

Out air trip over the Alps was one that would be long remembered, because of the ragged tips of these famous mountains jutting through the clouds at practically every point around us until we reached an intersection of Italy. The air view of Italy was quite unlike that of France and Switzerland since the greater portion of this area appeared dry instead of the green fresh look of the former two countries.

We arrived at the beautiful new and modern Rome airport at approximately 9:45 a.m.

After arriving at the new modern Victor Emmanuel Airport in Rome we journeyed by bus to the center of the city, where our Hotel Excelsior was located. In complete contrast to the easy-going atmosphere of Switzerland, this European city was buzzing with activity.

Since I am in the automobile business, I could not hesitate to notice the real absence of American-made cars. In Switzerland, aside from the scooters and bikes, the vehicle I noticed the most was the Opel, closely followed by other European makes such as Simcas, Volkswagens, Renaults and Fiats. In Rome practically 80 per cent of the cars seemed to be Fiats—including the buses.

Although there seemed to be a great many cars in traffic at all times, it seemingly moved along okay. Traffic signals were evident but not nearly as abundant as in the United States. Most of the traffic was directed by policemen.

The wonder of Rome's background and history is almost unbelievable. The Eternal City, with its city within a city, was so impressive it is too much to put into words. The greatness of Michelangelo's artistry was pronounced throughout. His works at Basilica of St. Peters, of St. Pauls, and others were truly glorious.

The arts and treasures of the Vatican were numerous. Many were gifts to the Pope from all parts of the world. The garb of the Swiss Guards reminded one of the ancient world.

Our tour brought us to the great coliseum, the monument to Victor Emanuel. Here soldiers stand erect for one full hour without movement.

The wonders of this city seemed never-ending. The parks, gardens and villas were tremendous. To cover the long lists of art galleries would take a full month with proper time given each.

After an especially tasteful meal at the Piazza, located in the hills (this was Mussolini's private dining spot), we journeyed back to our hotel. At almost any hour from 9 p.m. to 5 p.m., people walked by in droves — it seemed that the siesta hours from 2 to 4 p.m. enable them to mill around until early morning. It is worth a full evening at a sidewalk cafe viewing the conglomeration of people. This is how one really sees Rome at night.

As a soothing aftermath of the hectic evening, we again traveled to the outer edges of Rome. This time we went to Villa O'Este. The gardens and the fountains were all too breath-taking to forget.

Then we took a last brief shopping trip through the city and departed for a return to Switzerland. Our plane trip over the Alps via Swiss Air was quite enjoyable and smooth. As we landed, we particularly noticed the green, beautiful countryside in contrast to the dry of Rome. The stillness of Zurich led one to believe our travel service knew that after the hustle and bustle of Rome the traveler needed a slow down during the final few days of a trip. Our stay here will no doubt be spent in shopping and resting before our return to the United States.
