NORTH WINS - - - SOUTH LOSES 71 TO 63 65 TO 44

By MIKE EVANS
A small, fighting Torrance North High team Friday night outscored Leuzinger High, of Hawthorne, by a tally of 71 to 63.

Small, that is, for basketball. Al Leaper towers over his North team mates at six feet, five.

There are only a couple of others who measure up to six feet.

Coach Enger said that his boys played up to every inch of their ability.

"It was a well-played game," he said, "against a team which figures to be a 'spoiler' for the hopes of their opponents this year." For Leuzinger, Bob Mc-Michael was a "one man show," topping the Hawthorne's team with 16 points. Terry Tierney, of North High, was high scorer of the game with 19.

Steve Van Camp and Mike Gratzki, also of North, were tied as second high scorers of the game.

Al Leaper accounted for 12 points, Dennis Ireland, eight, and Carey Hubert, four, of North's total points.

the sharp shooting of Rick Ganulin. Ganulin, who sparked the Monarch offense all the way, led the scoring with 16 points.

Ganulin hit six field goals and four free throws.

Monarch Ron Losgrin backed up Ganulin all the way with a string of 16 points.

The Morningside Monarchs, of Inglewood, who showed little in football this year, proved itself a definite contender for the league championship topling the South High Spartans, of Torrance, 65 to 44, Friday night in the Bay League opener.

The Monarch scored consistently on the fast break.

The Monarchs, who never trailed, completely overwhelmed the Spartan's offense. The bright spot in the Spartan offense was Don Denson, who poured in 14 points.

Stewardship, Ben Franklin and Prayer

an ear, and the Mayor would advise the man at the microphone to speak more audibly.

The atmosphere was informal, with dignity. There was no wrangling, no display of personalities apparent to a stranger, only a strong desire on the part of all concerned — individuals and Council — to protect the future interest of the public without injury to that of individuals.

It does not take long to realize that Torrance today represents the future, not the past. Actually, in many ways, the present of Torrance is the future.

The astounding growth of this community presents problems of governing huge masses of people, transporting them, feeding them, educating them, and meshing them smoothly into an exciting society, that are being worked out far in advance of our own time.

In a similar way, the supermarkets and shopping centers that earlier evolved in Torrance and other Southern California areas rapidly were adapted by the older, less advanced areas until now they have mushroomed up all over the nation.

Government in action unfolded Wednesday night in the Torrance Council chamber, and nearly all matters were questions which could be answered only by the future.

Will the needs require one parking space for 260 square feet of building area, or less, or more?

Should a house be built to face toward a street that isn't yet there, but is planned at some later time?

Those are some of the questions which the City Council of Torrance must meet and work out the best they can each week.

When men leave the knowns of today to work out the unknowns of tomorrow, they seem to come face to face with forces that they neither can control nor understand, because they are asked to look where no man can see.

On a quiet Sunday, after the hectic holidays, it is easier to remember such things as stewardships, Benjamin Franklin, and the men of the Constitutional Convention who also were facing the future in the present, and the forces that men can neither control nor understand.

Such forces probably were in the mind of Franklin on a fateful day in 1787 when it seemed as though no force of man could prevent the Constitutional Convention from breaking up in failure.

Franklin rose to attempt to cool the passions and to restore the perspective of the delegates, each fighting for the particular interest of his state, without apparent thought for the interests of the whole.

"Our different sentiments on almost every question," said Franklin, "is, I think, a sad proof of the imperfection of human understanding."

"I have lived a long time," Franklin continued, "and the longer I live the more convincing proofs I see of this truth: That God governs the affairs of men. I therefore beg leave to move that henceforth prayers be held in this Assembly every morning before we proceed with business."

Franklin believed prayer was not so much to receive favors from the Deity, but as an essential way of knitting men together and achieving a more majestic force than they could control or comprehend to give the courage, insight, and wisdom, to face those forces which he can neither control nor understand.

And so, under the Constitution that was written by that apparently - disrupted convention of 1787, Rev. Gilbert S. Zimmerman, of the First Methodist Church, and the other pastors of our churches, can carry on that tradition of 1787 in the Council chamber of Torrance with thoughts simply expressed "of the great stewardship" of the people.

Perhaps that tradition helps the Council face the often vexing problems of the future in a period of astounding growth of the community.
