Chapel Theatre Presents 'The Devil's Advocate'

By BETTY SCHROEDER

Chapel Theatre, playing to "standing room only" audiences viewing the current production of "The Devil's Advocate," continues to astound audiences with the professional - type performances given by each in this dynamic collection of actors.

Although a somewhat lengthy play, no one seems to mind as this is one of the most absorbing and intriguing plots, full of suspenseful and emotional episodes.

This has been an extremely difficult production in many ways for Chapel Theatre to attempt, but all obstacles have been overcome through the capable efforts of the director, Gladys Manu of Wilmington.

The many scene changes, which have to be accomplished completely in darkness as the curtains are not drawn so as not to lose the moods, are smoothly handled by the backstage crew under the direction of Sam Manu and Rudi Medina who are stage managers.

The props are manipulated by Phyllis Palmer, who is responsible for set dressings, Carolyn Schroeder, Diane Barrera, Jim and Marlene Sena. One of the difficult chores in this production is the numerous and varying lighting effects which is managed by George Bingham with sound effects by Grover Palmer.

These are the unsung heroes of each performance in any production—the backstage crew, and with the many difficult and swift scene changes, many "flaunts" are extended to Steve Sands who designed the set.

The flash-backs are skillfully maneuvered through the combined efforts of the lighting and prop experts.

The many remarks submitted by the audiences, through the forms which are available after performances, are most complimentary for director, cast and crew. And well they may be, as each actor gives a devoted characterization to each challenging role, thereby delivering splendid portrayals.

Tom Lowry of Los Angeles plays the dying priest who finds peace and friendships through his investigation regarding honoring a dead soldier with sainthood. Lowry's dignified and humble manner and depth of character projects force and serenity at the same time.

Howard Cross, Southwest Obedience Club Trainer and an American Kennel Club licensed judge, will be in charge of the class.

WHAT'S DOING

Shown at the left is a new public telephone that tells the operator electronically how much money has been deposited... you don't hear any gongs or chimes. Other new features are a single slot for nickels, dimes and quarters, and handset (or receiver) placement similar to a home wall phone. The streamlined new coin phone started making its first appearance in some locations in California in March.

Our changing times: The first telephone ad in 1877 offered for rental "telephones for the transmission of articulate speech through instruments not more than 20 miles apart." Today you can reach 140,000,000 phones...some 98% of all the telephones in the world.

"Money at work means men at work" is the slogan of Invest-in-America Week, April 28 to May 4. Investing in America may seem like a big order. But actually it's a matter of looking at it the way the Invest-in-America Council does. They say: "All over America people are saving and investing, providing the capital needed for more schools, homes and factories. These things, in turn, lead to more jobs, more opportunity, and better living for everyone."

You're never alone... when you have a telephone.

CALLING IS AS EASY AS ONE-TWO-THREE "In Spring, a young man's fancy likely turns to love." So goes the line from a familiar old song. However, Springtime does suggest thoughts of far away places and the loved ones we haven't seen or communicated with for a long time. Why not pick up the telephone and bring an unexpected spark of joy into the life of a friend or relative. It's now as easy as calling next door with Direct Distance Dialing. Have you ever thought how extra telephones increase the pleasure of long distance calls and at the same time decrease the cost? With extra telephones, the whole family can talk to "Aunt Martha" without having to repeat the usual small talk. Our sparkling spring colors will not only make calling more pleasant, but will enhance the beauty of your home. Call your business office today and find out how for just a few pennies a day you can make those treasured calls to loved ones more often with added enjoyment.
