

Evergreen Grapes Will Grow Locally

Among the tender vines we are blessed with in Southern California few give better service than those of the Cissis family. Here we have the Evergreen Grape, and its cousins which serve equally well in covering a blank wall, a trellis or a dry bank.

The Evergreen Grape itself is a vine that always looks like something else. People mistake it for the Virginia Creeper, which it resembles, and the leaf by itself is easily mistaken for a grape leaf. Its distinguishing mark is the blue "grape" which it bears, and which some people claim is usable for preserves, though we've never found anyone who has actually tried them.

A wide ranging vine, it will cover the side of a house with bold evergreen foliage or shade you overhead when supported on a trellis.

The foliage takes on a bronze or crimson coloring in late fall and winter and will occasionally drop like any deciduous vine when winter is nippier than usual. Being tender, it much prefers mild winters, though well-established vines survive frost.

The variety hypoglauca is one of the best, more durable in temperature extreme than the Evergreen Grape and somewhat more refined in character. The leaves are narrower, shinier and lighter in color and the vine itself is less vigorous. Cissis hypoglauca can be used with good effect overhead or at your feet or anywhere in between. You see it hanging from a fence, climbing a pillar or sprawling on the ground. The California Association of Nurserymen is a strong booster of this one, especially in its capacity as a ground cover.

There are several other Cissis varieties to be found in C.A.N. nurseries and you'll get good service from all. Some are almost tropical looking. Others look as though you might find them in northern climates, though very few are ever found farther north and then only in areas near the coast. Here in Southern California, however, you can be sure all members of the family will give you good service.

WITHHOLDING AND SOCIAL SECURITY TAXES

Employers liable for income tax withholding and social security taxes in excess of $100 for the month of August must deposit such taxes in a depository, District Director R. A. Riddell of Internal Revenue in Los Angeles reported today. Stressing the importance of compliance with the deposit deadline of Sept. 16, 1963, he added that Form 450 must be used for this purpose.

Deposits may be made in local authorized banks, or Federal Reserve Banks, said Mr. Riddell.

Employers without a copy of Circular E, "Employers Tax Guide," may obtain one from the local Internal Revenue office. This publication contains a full discussion of employment taxes as well as tables and percentage methods for computing such taxes.

TWO FREEDOMS

There are two freedoms—the false, where a man is free to do what he likes; the true, where a man is free to do what he ought.
