Top Design Award Won By Youth

A 14-year-old Torrance boy has won top state honors in the 1964 Fisher Body Craftsman's Guild design competition and will represent the state in the junior division of the national contest.

Karlín Wong, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sing Wong of 1647 W. 228th St., won the state award of $150 cash for his modern sports car design. In two previous competitions, Wong received honorable mentions.

Wong will attend the annual Craftsman's Guild convention in Detroit as a guest of General Motors Corp. The convention opens Monday in the automobile city.

During the convention, Wong and other regional winners will witness the final judging for the annual contest. Some $38,000 in college scholarships will be awarded to top winners.

David Wong, Karlín's younger brother, won an honorable mention in the junior division.

'King Lear' Found to Be Rare Treat

By RICH OVERFIELD
Press-Herald Staff Writer
Serious drama lovers and students of the dramatic arts have a rare treat and opportunity this summer provided for them by the University Extension-sponsored professional theater organization at

UCLA. The Theater Group's lavish production of Shakespeare's "King Lear."

The opportunity is manifold: One, to see perhaps Shakespeare's greatest drama which is seldom performed because of the scarcity of actors capable of essaying the lead role; two, to see the most hailed and probably most important dramatic production to be presented on the West Coast this year; and three, to see one of the most highly acclaimed of modern performances—Morris Carnovsky in the Lear role, for which he has been nationally praised for his portrayal of the tragic figure.

LOS ANGELES critics have been proudly boasting for years of L. A. "theater" finally coming of age—what with all of the countless productions of "yum-yum trees," Jewish domestic comedies, and yet another lavishly banal production of "Sound of Music." But with this production of "Lear" they can now quite rightly take pride.

The 24-day run at UCLA was sold out early and the production was moved to the Pilgrimage Theater to enable more Southerners the opportunity of seeing it. The choice of this theater is perfect. Stunningly staged against the natural outdoor setting, the heights of the mountain-stage offset beautifully the sheer power and nobility of the play. The large cast works well under the direction of John Houseman and the costumes, music, and lighting all contribute to the magic.

IN ADDITION to the brilliantly memorable portrayal of Carnovsky, there is an impressive delineation by Charles Aidman of the Earl of Gloucester. Performances such as this are all too rare in Los Angeles. The rest of the cast nearly maintain a similar level of performance. You owe it to yourself to see what "theater" and "acting" can mean, and to the Southland, by supporting this rare example of serious and important drama.

Performances run until Aug. 1, and if ticket demand warrants it, will be extended until Aug. 8.

Members of the Torrance Moose Lodge will participate in a rare Moose ritual ceremony Tuesday evening when James A. Evans is vested with the Robe and Tau of the Pilgrim Degree of Merit of the Loyal Order of Moose.

Evans, secretary of the Torrance Lodge for many years, received the Pilgrim Degree in special ceremonies at the International Convention at Mooseheart, Ill. in early June. Only 159 other members of the world organization received the high honor this year.

Two other Californians, Ray Hoffman of Santa Ana and Lee R. Brooks of Salinas, were given the Pilgrim Degree.
