Publication to Aid Parents Of Kindergarten Children

"Is there anything I can do to help prepare my child for his first school experience?" This question, currently of concern to nearly 3,000 Torrance parents, is answered by the Torrance Unified School District in a publication distributed to kindergarten parents on the first day of school.

Preparation for school life actually begins ahead of time, according to Dr. J. H. Hull, superintendent of schools. Parents can help the child by helping him understand that he will have new interesting experiences at kindergarten among new friends and a sympathetic teacher.

In addition they can help him gain self confidence by allowing him to dress and care for himself, put away his own possessions, giving him responsibilities and simple errands to do, encouraging him to think things through for himself, and teaching him his full name, address and telephone number.

Torrance kindergarteners attend school on a part-time basis during the first two days in order to make the transition from home to school a gradual one. Mothers are invited to stay with the child the first day, and in some instances on the second day. Parents are notified by mail as to the particular hours for their child.

Included in the district publication is a description of the daily routine in kindergarten, an explanation of parent conferences, information concerning communicable diseases and a list of suggested reading for parents.
