

YOUR PROBLEMS

by Ann Landers

'Take Chances With Kissing' Miss ...

Dear Ann Landers: I can't talk to anyone about this problem and you'll soon understand why. My steady is 16. I am 17. She is a great little gal lots of laughs and like that, but she carries things too far. When she gets it in her head that she wants me to kiss her she doesn't care where she is. Friday night she got the idea on the turnpike and we almost had an accident.

In the movies last night she wanted me to kiss her so I finally did—to keep her quiet. Well, my aunt and uncle were sitting behind us and I didn't know it—until this morning when I heard plenty from my father.

Don't tell me to break up with this girl. I have already thought of it and I've decided I don't want to. Any other suggestions? — NO NAME PLEASE

Dear Irresistible: Since you don't want to break up with the girl you'll just have to take your chances and hope this kissing miss doesn't land you in the hospital—or worse.

Dear Ann Landers: I am 48 and have been going with an attractive widow for two and a half years. Last Christmas I gave her a lovely diamond engagement ring. She said we'd be married in a few months.

She has worn the ring only half dozen times to my knowledge. When I asked her why she didn't wear the ring all the time, as most engaged women do, she said, "The diamond is so large I feel self-conscious about it."

I suggested that we go to the jeweler's together and exchange the ring for one she likes better. She said no to that.

I've tried to get her to set a wedding date, but she makes up one excuse after another. I have a hunch her two teen-age sons don't want their mother to remarry.

I've been patient for a long time, Ann, and I'm willing to do anything to make her happy. Can it be that I'm kidding myself?—DOC

Dear Doc: If the sons are putting the dead hand on the marriage, you should talk this out with the three of them, at once. If this is not the case, and the woman is using her sons as an excuse, (Continued on Page 10)

IN THE MOOD ... Two members of the Torrance League of Women Voters and the City Manager visited the Smith Bros. Indian Village restaurant this week in preparation for the League's annual luncheon, to which city officials have been invited. Civic Officials Will Be Guests of League

Torrance's City Councilmen, Mayor, and City Manager have been invited to join the Torrance League of Women Voters in observing National Women Voters Week at a 12:30 luncheon, Thursday, Sept. 17, at Smith Brothers Indian Village restaurant.

Councilmen will form a panel to discuss topics of civic interest. Discussion is expected to touch upon the city's charter, which is in the League's local study item for the coming year, and upon questions posed by the League's study last year of Torrance's libraries, according to Mrs. Donald Brink, program chairman.

Mrs. Kenneth Watts will moderate the program. Torrance League members often rely upon city officials in gathering resource material for their studies and see councilmen at work as a result of the League's observer program. "We look forward to this affair each year," said Mrs.

Louis Lanzer, president of the non-partisan group, "because it gives us an opportunity for an informal exchange of ideas."

Mrs. Lanzer stated that any interested person would be welcome at the luncheon. Reservation information may be obtained by calling Mrs. P. G. Baker.

Nativity Mothers Begin Year

Nativity School Mothers Club will resume meetings on Tuesday, Sept. 15 at 8 p.m. in the Nativity Parish Annex.

Mmes. Robert Lewellen, president; Eugene McGovern, first vice president; Lewis Malnar, second vice president; Edwin Cambra, secretary; Arthur Schemm, treasurer, were elected at the business meeting held in June and will be installed in their respective offices at the Sept. 15 meeting. Mrs. Robert Wilson will act as installing officer.

The school faculty will be introduced as well as all mothers who are new to the organization.

Hostesses for the evening will be Mmes. James Fornelli and Andrew Rabel and the mothers of the two eighth grades.
