Hollywood Reporter

By Mike Connolly

Dear Mike: I work nights in the Technicolor lab and sleep days. At least I TRY to sleep days but I live near the Desilu Studio on Cahuenga Boulevard and there's so much yelling and screaming going on over there these days I CAN'T. What gives with those guys? — Delmore Kean, Hollywood.

Dear Delmore: I really don't know, unless it's the racket I hear Joey Bishop is raising. He's supposed to have told the network supervisor of his TV scrips to keep his nose OUT. That was after the supervisor raised a ruckus because Joey signed Oscar Levant as a guest star, saying, "We don't want any sick comics on our network!" But Oscar's turned out to be one of the funniest show's they've ever shot—so now Joey's calling the shots in no uncertain terms. Till things quiet down, Delmore, try ear plugs.

Dear Sir: A grave question has arisen among several of the drunks at one of our country clubs. One of them just got back from a wine-tasting tour of England and the Continent and claims an unimpeachable London source says Ringo Starr and Paul McCartney of The Beatles are definitely married—Ringo to Maurine Cox, the girl who accompanied him to the Virgin Islands several months ago, and Paul to Jane Asher. It's grave because our teen-age daughters weep bucketsful whenever the subject comes up. Tell us true, is it or isn't it?—Paul L. Haganauer, Chicago.

Dear Paul: I too am told they don't deny it among their close friends, although they do to reporters. But I wouldn't take any bets the two mop tops themselves confirm or deny. After all, who am I to burst your daughters' pretty bubbles?

Dear Smarty Pants: Is Vince Edwards still going with that blonde or do I still have a chance? — Joanne Cuthshaw, Ithaca, N. Y.

Dear Joanne: You almost made a poem, did you know that — although I doubt that you'll ever inherit Edna St. Vincent Millay's Crown. Answer is no, you don't. He's now going with a redhead named Sharon Farrell (Vassar or Bryn Mawr she ain't but built she is). In fact he just sent her a potted plant.

Dear Sir: I used to know a Ray Stark when I worked at Forest Lawn out there in your fair city. Is he the same man who produced "Funny Girl" on Broadway and "Night of the Iguana" for the movies?—Dave Christiansen, East Lansing, Mich.

Dear Dave: Yes. He was a florist in that cemetery before he became a Hollywood talent agent and, later, a producer.

Dear Mike: Will David Janssen ever capture that one-armed man in his "Fugitive" series? — Mrs. Vera Gross, Dedwood City.

Dear Mrs. Gross: If he does, the show's over.

Sir: Will we ever see "Gone with the Wind" on TV? — John R. Deming, Rochester, N.Y.

Dear John: Maybe, but only if you pay for it. Pay-TV's Pat Weaver is talking to MGM bossman Bob O'Brien about that very subject right now.

Dear Mike: We always liked Esther Williams. Is she still around? — Christine Fisher, Norwood, Mass.

Dear Christine: Esther is getting along swimmingly.

Dear Mr. Connolly: I have a hobby of collecting the names of cemeteries where famous stars are buried. Could you help me out—for instance, El Brendel and Vera Gordon? — Frank Headland, Salem, Ohio.

Dear Frank: No, I can't. If you write to the Screen Actors Guild, Hollywood, Calif., they might feel up to it, although I doubt it.

Dear Mike: What's Frank Sinatra REALLY like? Is he the deep-down-rotten character some columnists make him out to be or is he the basically nice but misunderstood guy described in that recent book by Robin Douglas-Home?—Candy Ping, Anaheim.

Dear Candy: I've always found him to be a nice guy and I think I understand him. I believe Frank feels at home with the hipsters but blows his stock at out-of-town reporters who ask too-personal questions, thus unwittingly building his own mean-guy legend.

To All Readers: I'm so far behind in answering my mail, I doubt if I'll ever catch up. It is indeed gratifying to know that so many of you are interested in Hollywood and its stars. But, even with two staffers working on it eight hours a day, it's impossible to answer it all. So, for the time being, please bear with me; no more personal replies by mail from Mike's Mailbag column! — Mike C.
