

Peace Corps Recruit Team at El Camino

A Peace Corps team from Washington, D. C. will man an information center at El Camino College today through Dec. 5.

Members of the team will explain the purpose, programs and future plans of the Peace Corps and will accept applications from interested students.

Non-competitive aptitude tests will be given several times daily to applicants. These tests will require no previous knowledge of a foreign language and are used for placement purposes only. Optional Spanish and French language achievement tests will also be administered.

PEACE CORPS questionnaires must be completed prior to testing. They are available at most post offices and may be obtained also in advance from Herbert L. Swanson, placement office.

Members of the Peace Corps team are available as speakers for civic groups. Guest appearances are being arranged by Swanson at 324-6631.

Persons applying for Peace Corps assignments will be informed of their eligibility within approximately two months.

At present there are some 10,000 volunteers either overseas or in the process of training for service in 46 countries in Africa, Asia, and Latin America. Training programs begin in almost every month of the year but are especially concentrated during February and the summer months.

Marine Pvt. Peter Molina, son of Mr. and Mrs. Pete Molina of 18123 Bailey drive, completed recruit training Oct. 28 at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot, San Diego, Calif.

Vending Machine: An Old Idea in the 20th Century

By REYNOLDS KNIGHT
For customers in a hurry vending machines quickly dispense food, cigarettes, soft drinks, candy and even such soft goods as handkerchiefs, hosiery and the like. Acceptability of the vending machine and its multitude of wares has created a market in which sales in 1964 may rise as high as $3.6 billion.

where frequently the cigarette sales are made only by machine.

Vending machines, in fact, are said to have caused the disappearance of the factory worker's lunch pail.

Which just goes to show what can be done with even the oldest of ideas. For the basic idea of the vending machine goes all the way back to 215 B.C. when the Greek mathematician Heron, generally known as Hero, designed a coin-actuated device for selling sacrificial water in Egyptian temples.

TIRE YOU'VE WAITED FOR — A new tire designed to do the things you've always wanted tires to do has been introduced by B. F. Goodrich Tire Co.

Today, the 20th Century vending machine is found just about everywhere, schools, stores, filling stations, hospitals and restaurants. Yes, even in restaurants

The "Silvertown 660" will appear as original equipment on many new 1965 automobiles, according to C. H. Caldwell, BFG's manager of passenger tire sales, and will give better handling, improved high-speed performance, longer tread life and less power consumption than previous tires in the same price range.

The new tire also is available at BFG outlets in a complete range of sizes for replacement on older passenger cars.

The "Silvertown 660" has a wider cross-section and lower section height than previous original equipment tires, and a rounded tread shoulder that enables it to roll over highway irregularities without the "trolley track effect" characteristic of other tires, Caldwell said. The wide track gives a 4 to 5 per cent lower profile that, together with a reduced angle in the cords, provides better stability, steering response and high-speed performance, he said.

The improvement in steering and handling can be felt by the driver as soon as the car begins to move, Caldwell said.

'REJUVENATION' OF DOWNTOWN AREAS — The trend toward "rejuvenation" of the central city core has been accelerating the past few years, according to John S. Roberts, vice president-real estate of the F. W. Woolworth Co., who told the Urban Land Institute recently in Denver, that "while these forces have been slow in adequate movement, there is encouraging evidence of what can be and has been accomplished by a planned, coordinated effort of civic and business groups."

"Our company has great faith in the future of America's downtown," Roberts said, pointing out that while Woolworth has been expanding in regional shopping centers, it also has enlarged and refurbished a considerable number of downtown stores in the past five years.

Roberts cited six basic requirements to prevent the decline of downtown areas: the need for a favorable climate for business and industry to assure normal economic growth of the community; an effective Chamber of Commerce and merchants' organization to help downtown areas become competitive in vying for the trade dollar; equality of taxation; zoning regulations and building code requirements which guide — not stifle — commercial development; adequate traffic control and development of the full role of downtowns, not only as a business center, but as a center of government and administrative functions.

SCIENCE NEWS — The U. S. Army dental corps still is treating arrow wounds. In Viet Nam injuries from arrows and bamboo spears are causing the largest number of casualties among infantrymen but military oral surgeons are rapidly developing simple but competent equipment for front-line duty . . .

Shoplifting is about to become much tougher. An electronic thief catcher has been developed to warn shopowners when unpaid-for merchandise is taken through the exit. The tiny device would be hidden in the shop's price tags . . .

New hope for a useful life is being offered chronic kidney disease sufferers through the development of an artificial kidney that can be successfully utilized in the home. Because it costs much less to build and can be supervised by members of the family, it may become more readily available.

THINGS TO COME—Timed extension cord that automatically shuts off light at pre-selected time within periods of one minute to four hours. Six-foot cord operates on 125-volt house current . . .
