

John Robert Powers School Opens in South Bay Center

John Robert Powers, creator of the world famous "Powers Models," has opened a new school for women in the South Bay Center. The school will be open from 9:30 a.m. until 9:30 p.m.

The South Bay Center school is seventh in the Los Angeles and the 45th in the international chain.

JOHN ROBERT POWERS Opens New School

The Powers Schools were begun some 40 years ago when Powers, then an actor, opened his own model agency. Demand for the "natural" look which Powers featured, resulted in a completely new look in the fashion world and an overnight success for Powers.

The school developed from the model agency when Powers realized that many women could benefit from the training offered career models. The model agency was transformed into a school which has continued to grow throughout the years.

Powers calls the inner beauty which he seeks to uncover the "inner glow." The description, he says, fits for the "inner glow is the essence of a beautiful girl."

The Powers schools offer courses in make-up and hair styling, wardrobe and fashions, visual poise, etiquette and social graces, personality development, voice and diction, and modeling techniques.
