Math Teacher Gains Fame As Surfer, Dory Racer

Abe Lincoln figured math problems on shovels. J. Eugene Brady, El Camino College math instructor and one of the finest surfers and dory boat racers in Southern California probably uses a hurf board for his computations.

Surfing since 1958, the native Californian now concentrates on dory racing and daddle boarding. Brady does well at his hobby, having come out on top in several competitions.

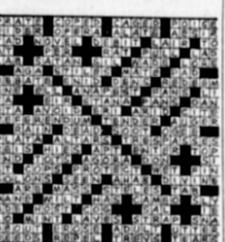

This past summer, the 25-year-old former Santa Barbara represented the California State team in the Taplan Relay at Hermosa Beach. He and his partner garnered first-place dory racing honors, defeating the Australian team among others.

Now in his first semester at El Camino, Brady received his bachelor of arts and master of arts degrees in mathematics from the University of California at Santa Barbara. He gained his student teaching experience at Santa Barbara City College.

BRADY'S specialty is mathematical analysis. He is instructing classes in calculus, trigonometry and in advanced math for math majors.

Brady worked his way through college as a life-guard, based at Carpinteria Beach near Santa Barbara. He plans to continue his watery way of life in the future unless summer teaching duties interfere.
