James Davis Presented Camp Fire Girls Award

Three Torrance area residents have been awarded national awards by the Camp Fire Girls Los Angeles Area Council. The awards were presented at the council's annual meeting in Hollywood.

James A. Davis received the Charlotte Joy Farnsworth Award for exceptional service to the Harbor District Camp Fire Girls. Davis has served as candy chairman, sustaining membership, and district chairman during the past several years.

Mrs. O. D. Barnard, currently secretary of the Harbor District committee, and Mrs. J. Goren of San Pedro, group leader for the past eight years, were recipients of the Wakan Service Award for creative work and outstanding leadership, and program guidance.

Members of the Okita Horizon Club were selected to serve as junior hostesses for the presentation ceremonies. Davis' daughter, Nancy, made the presentation of the Charlotte Joy Farnsworth Award. Misses Kathy Hansen and Sally Lassere, and club member Kathy McTae led the flag salute. Miss Linda Salisbury, Kleka Horizon Club, also served as a junior hostess.

During the annual meeting, Mrs. Theodore Quick was elected to the council board of directors. She is chairman of the 1965 Harbor District Committee. Ted S. Penfold of San Pedro was re-elected treasurer of the Los Angeles Area Council.

Other new members of the council board are Mrs. Gordon Jennings, president; Peter R. Perez, first vice president; Mrs. Virgil Erickson, second vice president, and Miss Jean Williams, secretary.

CAMP SCHEDULES . . . Members of the Torrance YMCA staff faced the problem of trying to cram 24 weeks of camping into the 11 summer vacation weeks available this year. Here, Joe Wilcox, Mrs. Frank Remy, Arthur Sears, and Paul Egelund play with the master schedule in an effort to find a place for everyone.

Emergency Meeting Called To Meet 'Topless' Issue

For Fall Opening Aid to College Offered Again

City Councilmen last night reaffirmed an earlier offer to provide free facilities so that the Palos Verdes State College might open as scheduled in September.

The offer was extended following a report on the status of the college by City Manager Edward J. Ferraro and City Attorney Stanley Remelmeier. The council also reaffirmed an offer to make certain off-site improvements—roads and sidewalks—if the college is located in Torrance and appropriated up to $300 for the development of a three-dimensional "global sketch" of site utilization.

Ferraro said several state officials, including Assemblyman Vincent Thomas (D-66th District), will meet tomorrow in Sacramento to review the site problems.

"Every person going to that meeting knows about the Torrance site," Ferraro said.

THE REPORT followed several behind-the-scenes meetings involving state and college officials. Ferraro said the meetings were scheduled to find out what has been going on and to try to get state college trustees to take a new look at the Torrance site.

"It is doubtful," Ferraro said, "that the state legislature will approve the added $5 to $6 million needed for the Palos Verdes site." He said condemnation proceedings had been filed on 194 acres on the Peninsula.

The pros and cons of the Torrance site are well known by state and college officials, Ferraro said. There is little the city can add to the materials and arguments already advanced in favor of the site at Crenshaw and Sepulveda boulevards.

THERE IS a smoldering desire to get the college built," Ferraro added. He also said it appears the state college trustees are back where they were some two years ago in the site selection process.

Location of the college has been muddled in recent weeks because of delays in obtaining land on the Peninsula. State officials have flayed rezoning action by the City of Rolling Hills Estates which they say doubled the price of the land selected for the college.

AT INSTITUTE . . . Torrance teachers Nancy Bartlett and Karen A. Sanford, both from Magruder School, were among some 500 Southern California elementary teachers and administrators attending the fifth annual Institute for Teachers at Beverly Hills High School. The all-day sessions were co-sponsored by the Reiss-Davis Clinic for Child Guidance and the extension division of Los Angeles Institute for Psychoanalysis.

City Seeks Law To End Threats

Local ordinances which will outlaw topless costumes for waitresses, impose entertainment license taxes, and establish controls over bars and taverns through the city's license review board will be considered at an adjourned meeting of the City Council at 4:30 p.m. tomorrow.

The special meeting follows a request by the City Council that the State Alcoholic Beverage Control Board revoke the license of a recently opened Torrance beer bar on the grounds that the bar is "offensive to the community's sense of decency."

Opening of the Walteria area bar was deplored by ministers, homeowners, and the Restaurant and Hotel Employees Union before the City Council last night.

THE TORRANCE Ministerial Association, in an emergency meeting held just prior to the council meeting, called on the councilmen to "enact an ordinance to prevent all such places of business . . . from being established in the city." The Rev. Clifford Tierney, pastor of the South Bay Church of God and president of the association, read a statement in which such bars were called "an outrage to public decency."

Similar sentiments were expressed by Stanley Dunn, representing the Riviera Homeowners Association, and by Mary Olson Moran, who is a member of the Restaurant and Hotel Employees Local 512.

All speakers called on the council "to do something immediately."

City Attorney Stanley Remelmeier said his office had researched state and city codes for all sections of the law which are applicable to the new bar. "We are not going to harass these people," Remelmeier said, "but we are going to enforce the law."

Waitresses at the bar wear only leotards and "pasties."

While city officials have expressed concern and alarm about the bar, which is located adjacent to a city park, they have been virtually handcuffed in doing anything. State laws have pre-empted the field and no statute specifically outlaws the wearing of the topless outfits.

Remelmeier said the owners of the bar sought a restraining order against the city. The court did not grant the temporary injunction, but did order the city to appear March 10 to show cause why it should not be granted.

"We will meet that challenge in the court," Remelmeier told the councilmen.

Remelmeier's office also has prepared a number of petitions asking the state to take action. Several copies of the petitions were given to citizens who attended Tuesday's meeting.

Electronic Brain Plans Annual Y Camp Schedule

Rapid growth in the past six months has created some real problems for the Torrance Family YMCA.

The "Y" staff, planning for the summer camp season, was faced with the problem of fitting 24 weeks of camping into the 11-week vacation.

To solve the problem the YMCA staff began working on a huge chart with movable date strips.

Arthur Sears, director of the campaign, said Mrs. Alpha Benz was scheduled to direct two girls' camps the same week on the first draft. A second edition had five buses on the road at the same time, so the "Y" staffers threw in the towel and turned the whole thing over to an NCR "electronic brain."

THE SCHEDULE includes five week-long resident camps for boys and girls 9 to 12 years old. Camp Tippy Canoe has been added to provide sessions for younger boys.

For co-ed teenagers 14 and up, there is a rubber raft expedition down the Green River through Ledore Canyon in Utah. The river trip is planned for two weeks. Also scheduled is the traditional Leadership Development Camp for older teens. It is planned for the close of summer.

To launch the vacation period, boys and girls 12 and older can explore Zion, Bruce, and Grand Canyon National Parks. More adventurous youths are planning a hike from one rim of the canyon to the other, spending one night at Phantom Ranch.

FIVE YMCA family camps are being scheduled. Trips to Yosemite National Park, Big Basin Redwoods State Park, a beach weekend, and

The Supervisor commended Mrs. Dorothy A. Hancock, chairman of the Keystone Neighborhood Council, 22525 S. Main St., and her organization for helping to spearhead the need to bring expanded health services to this area.

New district health officer for the area will be Dr. Earl W. Kendrick, whose headquarters will be at the Torrance District Health Center, 2300 Carson St.
