'Man in Universe' Show Southwest Savings and Loan Marks Anniversary

The location of the earth in the solar system is shown to audiences during presentations of "Man's Place in the Universe," the current spectacular at Griffith Park Observatory's planetarium theater.

Position of our solar system in the Milky Way system, which is a galaxy of one hundred billion stars similar to our sun, is also brought out during the show, according to Dr. Clarence H. Clemminshaw, the Observatory's director. He added that a special feature of "Man's Place in the Universe" is a telescopic view of the Milky Way stretching from one horizon to the other.

Through space-travel projects, armchair astronauts will also journey to the Andromeda Galaxy, which is similar to the Milky Way, Dr. Clemminshaw said. Although Andromeda is the nearest full-sized galaxy, light from it takes more than two million years to reach the earth, Dr. Clemminshaw reported.

"Man's Place in the Universe" is offered daily, except Monday, at 3 and 8:30 p.m., with extra matinees slated Saturdays and Sundays at 1:30 and 4:30 p.m.

Regular planetarium theater prices of 75 cents for adults and 30 cents for students under 18 years of age are in effect for all performances.

The public may also look through the Observatory's twin refracting telescope from dusk until 10 p.m., when the sky is clear.

Hahn Wants Report on Research at Hospitals

Concern over the amount of time being spent by Civil Service doctors and other county employes in medical research was expressed this week by Supervisor Kenneth Hahn.

The Supervisor said he realized the tremendous value of medical research, but pointed out patients should not be neglected.

Approximately 25 of the 54 full-time doctors on the staff of Harbor General Hospital are involved in research projects, often on county time. Some of these doctors also are professors of the UCLA School of Medicine and receive money from the state along with their County salaries, Hahn said.

Hahn asked for a study and report on the amount of research being conducted at all county hospitals from the Superintendent of Charities, Hospital Advisory Commission, and medical directors of each hospital.

"I understand and appreciate the need for more knowledge and better understanding of methods to preserve health and to cure dreaded diseases, but I am concerned if it is the primary function of county Civil Service doctors to do basic research rather than attend patients," Hahn said.

"The most important function of any doctor serving at a county hospital is to make sure that every patient receives the best possible care and immediate attention to each patient's needs," Hahn added.
