

Montgomery Students Get Copies of Annual

EXAMINE WORK . . . Father John Joseph, moderator of the yearbook staff at Montgomery High, and editors Art Coon and Barbara Dineen get a close look at their work for the year. The yearbook, Excalibur '65, was distributed to students last Friday, following a preview at the publications banquet Thursday evening.

The yearbook is dedicated to Wibberly.

The 1965 yearbook was edited by Barbara Dineen and Art Coon. Father John Joseph was moderator for the staff.

MISS KANE served as yearbook art editor, while Muensterman directed the layout of the book.

... Let's Go

By LARRY MACARAY

Today is the day. Once a year El Camino College art students have an exhibition of the work that they have created during the academic year. It's surprising how really professional this student work has become.

Many people wait all year long (saving their pennies) just to buy a few ceramic pots, a painting or a really fine drawing. It's a scramble to buy some of the better things—especially in the ceramic department where the quality of work compares with most four-year schools.

Yes, today is the day. The entire art department will be open from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m., displaying artwork in every room. All of the art faculty will be present—just in case any of the viewers want to talk or ask questions.

should be curtailed. At some point in an artist's career, there must be some judging for evaluation but only on a strictly professional level when the results of his years of training show a definite maturity and development.

On the subject of judging—it all boils down to a subjective decision by one or more judges—obviously based on his or her respective backgrounds. What does this mean? It has about as much meaning as an I. Q. test does. Too much emphasis is placed on judging and prizes—even skateboards are getting a big play now.

GERRY VOM STEEG, former Torrance High School student, and now one of the most creative art students at El Camino has just won the coveted Mildred K. Walker Art Award. It's worth $250. The money isn't the total reason why students want this award. It really represents confidence by the art faculty that the recipient will continue to mature as an artist, whatever school he attends after El Camino—in this case it will be Long Beach State.

Tom Hubbert, another former Tartar, will be well represented in several departments of the exhibition—paintings, drawings and three dimensional design. Last year I purchased his prize-winning oil painting from the show.

Seems like old-home-week. Gary Parton, art teacher at North High School, reports that their second student art exhibition was a huge success. Am looking forward to seeing the Variety Puppet Show next week at North High. His students have created 28 huge puppets, costumes, stage settings, and the works. From his description, it should be a riot of a show.

WEST VIRGINIA PICNIC

Former residents of West Virginia are being invited to meet with others from their state on Sunday, June 20, when the group holds its annual picnic in Sycamore Grove Park, 4702 N. Figueroa St. The picnic will get under way at 9 a.m. Coffee will be provided. The program will begin at 1:30 following the lunch.

IN PAST YEARS, there has always been a hot competition for the various awards (mostly ribbons) in each classification of judging. What a shock it is to many this year to find that there is no real judging, except the selection that each art instructor makes in the normal activity of hanging a show.

It was a unanimous choice of the ten members of the art faculty that judging
