

Special Fair for Teenage Set Planned by Officials

More than 200,000 teenagers are expected to attend the 1965 Teenage Fair during its presentation as the key feature of the California State Fair, Sept. 1-12 in Sacramento.

Described as a "world's fair" for young people, the $2 million extravaganza will spread across three acres of ground adjoining the midway and will include shows, pageants and attractions designed to make it the event of a lifetime for teenagers.

Major national companies are joining with local business leaders to provide fun, education and entertainment in this "fair within a fair." A highlight of the jamboree will be the "Non-Stop Dance Hop," a 132-hour musical marathon featuring three bands performing around the clock for dancing on three stages.

CUSTOM CAR enthusiasts will get their first look at expert Nick Mura's cars of the future and will marvel at the fabulous custom cars and hot rods on display during the entire show.

Another highlight event will be the national Miss Teen USA pageant. Teenage girls from the greater State Capitol area will enter 11 days of competition for the title Miss Northern California and such prizes as an expense paid trip to Hollywood to meet in the national competition set for April at the world-famous Hollywood Palladium.

TWO ONE-HOUR television "specials" will be scheduled to bring the Miss Teen USA Pageant to home viewers all over the area. One radio station will originate its entire broadcast schedule during Teenage Fair hours, 10 a.m. to 11 p.m.

The continuous Battle of the Bands event will pit teenage rock and roll groups against each other in a competition to determine the outstanding combo in the area, with trophies and statewide fame as reward. Folk singers and folk music fans will enjoy their own event, the Harmony Guitar Hootenanny, featuring daily competition

Statement Erroneous, CREA President Says

The California Real Estate Association (CREA) has labeled as erroneous a public statement by Clive Graham, chairman of the State Fair Employment Practice Commission, that real estate boards which accept multiple listings with racial restrictions "violate the spirit of the CREA Code of Practices."

Graham made the charge in a statement issued July 6.

David N. Robinson of Berkeley, CREA president, said, "Contrary to Mr. Graham's statement, accepting restricted listings do not violate either the spirit or the letter of our Code of Practices. A property owner has the right to choose freely to whom he will sell his own property and the real estate agent has the right to represent him.

"Our Code reminds our members," he added, "that they must not in any way incite racial or religious restrictions. The objective of the Code and of CREA is to provide equal services to anyone."

Commenting on the FEPC announcement that it would make a survey of real estate boards to see if they are accepting such listings, Robinson said:

"There is nothing illegal about accepting a restricted listing. And if a multiple listing service does accept them, other brokers and salesmen must know of the restriction. Otherwise they could be in the position of misleading a prospective buyer."

"Mr. Graham seems to want to ignore that fact," Robinson concluded.

CREA Property Owner's Division Gets Director

Francis S. Bell has joined the staff of the California Real Estate Association as field and staff coordinator of CREA's newly formed Property Owners Division, H. Jackson Pontius, executive vice president, said today.

Pontius said that Bell would do organizational work among the association's 175 member real estate boards and with outside groups.

"Mr. Bell's background and ability will help us reach our goal of 200,000 home owners and other real property owners added as subscribers to the division this year," Pontius commented. "They need a source of information concerning legislation pending or being talked about. That's the object of the division, to provide such information."

CREA's present membership of realtors, real estate salesmen, and affiliates stands at 48,000.

Bell has had more than 15 years' experience as campaign director or finance director of voluntary business associations, according to Pontius, including six years as executive director of the Los Angeles County branch of the American Cancer Society; two years as public information director of the California Taxpayers Association; two years as finance director for the Southern California Cancer Center, and two years as finance director for the Downtown Businessmen's Association of Los Angeles.

He will work out of CREA's Los Angeles headquarters. He resides in Glendale.

MARIONETTE SHOWS

For the kiddies each day of the California State Fair there will be one of the outstanding Marionette shows in the country.

SC Workshop Attended by Two Students
