Road Work Aid Slated By County

Vital highway improvements in the Southwest area cities are included in the county's nearly $27 million aid-to-cities highway budget, Supervisor Charman Burton W. Chace has announced.

As chairman of the Supervisors' Road Committee, Chace said the county appropriation is 14 per cent above last year's expenditure for the area.

A major portion of the amount earmarked for the Southwest area as the county comes in the form of highway aid made available to the 76 cities within the county.

Supervisor Chace pointed out that Los Angeles County is one of the few in the state to grant financial aid to its incorporated population. Other counties of the state disburse an average of 60 cents per capita," Chace said.

"This type of cooperation," he continued, "makes possible continuous development of needed highway projects across jurisdictional boundaries to add continuity and efficiency to our highway system."

Major projects included in the budget are:

223rd Street (Normandie to Alameda) $1,084,000; Lomita (Normandie to Alameda) $969,000; Pier Avenue (Artesia to Coast Highway) $483,000; and La Cienega (Stocker to City boundary) $300,000, Chace said.
