

SLEEP CENTER . . . Been sleeping well lately? Well if you haven't, maybe your mattress is your problem, and if it is, South Bay Sleep Center can help solve that problem. The firm, located at 18302 Hawthorne Blvd., has been in the furniture and bedding business in Torrance for the past 20 years, and offers a wide selection of bedding. Manager Chuck Markland will assist in the selection of a new mattress and springs customized to your individual needs and all at reasonable prices.

EXTRA TOUCH . . . Ruth Trippe, manager of the artificial flowers department at Newberry's Rolling Hills Plaza store, checks a selection of feather flowers. These flowers have become very popular as ideal accessories in today's homes, Mrs. Trippe says. Newberry's features a complete line of artificial flowers and fruits for the do-it-yourself home decorator.

IDEAL FOR TABLE . . . Verna Jennings of Newberry's Rolling Hills Plaza displays an arrangement of artificial grapes which are now available at the store. Artificial fruits have become very popular with the home decorator, she reports, and Newberry's offers a wide selection.

In-and-Out Carpeting On Market

Autumn leaves falling? If present trends continue, some mother may soon tell her child "Go vacuum the front lawn, dear . . . company's coming."

It may sound out of this world but out of doors carpeting is now a reality thanks to some new developments in carpeting made of olefin fiber. Recently, several carpet mills have introduced an all-olefin carpeting to their lines. This means that with moisture resistant surface fiber and backing made of the same type fiber the carpet can be used both outdoors and indoors.

THOUGH wall-to-wall front lawns may be somewhat in the realm of fantasy, the carpet is definitely adaptable to such areas as boats (from runabouts to yachts), and patios, which open off from living rooms or recreation areas thus bringing the indoors out, to twist an old decorator's technique. The indoor-outdoor carpet is also suggested for year 'round poolside areas for those who like luxury with their luxury.

Chief reason for the new role now in prospect for the carpet is the fact that for the first time manufacturers are making a new tufted, turf-like carpet. Backing, also olefin, is coated with a special bonding agent which results in a roughened surface so that the carpet clings, without padding, to smooth surfaces such as cement or tile.

Versatile Paneling Available

Is your fireplace a work of masonry art—or is it an eyesore that you'd like to hide? The floor-to-ceiling fireplace is usually the focal point of any room. Properly built and cared for, it can stand out as the center of interest in a smartly furnished living room, den, or family room. But if the masonry is poor, old, or tarnished by soot, it stands out only as a sore thumb.

Most homeowners faced with this problem shudder at the prospects of doing something to solve it. Do you face off the fireplace with new stone or brick? Do you tear out the old fireplace and start all over again? Either way it's too costly for comfort.

One inexpensive way to get around this problem is to cover the unattractive fireplace with modern woodgrain hardboard paneling. Besides covering the objectionable masonry, hardboard paneling adds richness and warmth to a cozy fireplace room.

The project is neither costly nor complex. Experts at Celotex suggest that the fireplace be framed with 2x4's, hardboard paneling cut to fit and nailed or glued to the framing, and molding added at the ceiling, floor, and around the fireplace opening. Corners can be mitered to fit or covered with matching corner molding. Three or four pieces of 4'x8' hardboard are sufficient to cover the average fireplace, including front and sides. Instructions on proper handling of hardboard paneling and information on local building codes are available from most building material dealers.
