TOKYO — Typhoon rains did not keep me off the wet, busy downtown shopping streets of Tokyo. I think I did just as well in the shopping arcade of the Hotel New Japan. All the tourist hotels in Japan have an arcade of small shops. About the same cameras, pearls, transistor radios, dolls, silks, screens, samurai swords.

The display is attractive. Prices and quality are good. I find I buy more in Japan than most countries because the shopping is easy!

For an idea of prices, I bought a 74-piece stainless steel table setting. Fine dinner sign by Japan Sword, satin finish, $28. A hand-carried Sony radio in AM-FM with excellent range and tone, $22. Two palm-size Sony AM ra-(ivory, silk, etc.) — and im-ports duty-free — (German binoculars, etc.) — Hong Kong is your place. If bar-gaining bothers you, go to the big fixed-price department store, Lane, Crawford.

Duty-free Singapore seemed a little cheaper to me than Hong Kong. But there isn't the selection.

In the other parts of the Pacific: Sydney has a duty-free shop for tourists. Selection of goods is poor. American Samoa has a shop at the airport. From Samoa, Americans can bring in $200 duty-free compared to the $100 allowance from any place else. But the Samoa shop has almost nothing to sell. Out of American cigarettes when I was there.

The airport shop at Tahiti: French perfume is the only buy. Fiji: This is a British Crown Colony like Hong Kong, all imports duty-free. Quite a selection of Japanese cameras and transistor radios, pearls and watches. But buy from one of the big stores like Burns-Philp South Seas Trading Co. The Fiji per says many Indian stores sold tourists poor quality items put into high quality name cases.

Hawaii: The duty-free shop at Honolulu airport is good for cigarettes and liquor if you are going onward into the Pacific.

Manila: I didn't see any duty-free shopping last time I was there. Best buys are Philippine wood products. Salad bowls. Carved figures.

Best buy: I've had this year a Japanese Hitachi car radio. Regular broadcast plus two short wave bands that pick up a lot of world radio. The set pulls out of the car and works on batteries if you want to take it to the beach. Cost, $40. At Burns-Philp in Suva, Fiji.

FREE ALLOWANCE: If we buy some things to send home, do we get them duty-free if we don't go over the $100? No more. The $100 duty-free allowance applies only to what you carry in. If you ship it, you pay duty. You are allowed to send home duty-free $100 or less gifts. Only one person in one day. (But as many days as you like, so you can buy three things and have them shipped over three days.) These gifts do not apply to your $100 duty-free allowance.

Does everyone get the $100 allowance? Children, too?

Yes, you all get it. But it doesn't work on your one bottle of liquor allowance. So don't fill the baby's bottle with 80-proof. Adults only. Everybody worries about going over their $100. But if you do, the duty you pay never hurts much. The $100 is applied first to the things that pay the highest percentage. You pay on the things that pay low percentage duty.

FIRST CABLE
The first transatlantic telegraph cable was laid in 1866 from England to Newfoundland from the British ship, the Great Eastern, according to Pacific Telephone.

Harbor General Hospital Doctor Gets Study Grant

Stanley G. Korenman, M.D., of Harbor General Hospital is among California scientists selected to share in new cancer research grants.

The grants total $334,380—more than half of which is for study of the possible relationship of hormones to cancer.

Dr. Korenman received $91,045 for a two-year investigation of the bio-chemical and physiological roles of estrogens and progesterones in stimulating growth and development of secondary sex tissues in the female uterus and breast.

Three of the new grants announced are for metabolic studies of tumors and cancer cells. They total $69,399.

AT THE University of Southern California in Los Angeles, Walter Marx, Ph.D., receives $7,325 for investigation of the biosynthesis of heparin, a blood coagulant.

Through an inter-disciplinary committee headed by Justin J. Stein, M.D., the UCLA School of Medicine in Los Angeles was awarded a $25,000 institutional grant to be used in developing research projects.

The new grants bring to $1,665,132 the research grants at California institutions announced during the past fiscal year by state and national organizations of the American Cancer Society.
