MAKE HOME DECORATIONS Putting finishing touches on a do-it-yourself toothpick tree are Michael Farish and Donna Mason, seventh grade students at Sepulveda Elementary School. Art students of Mrs. Billie Bristlin made holiday decorations from ideas gleaned from the pages of yuletide issues of popular adult magazines. Sophisticated Santas, wreaths, and candles of styrofoam, tinsel, and glitter were among the artifacts made by the students.

Student Do-It-Yourself

Gifts Glamorous

Time was when the hand-made holiday gift carried home the last day of school before Christmas bore all the signs of amateur skill and loving thought that went into its making.

The loving thought is still there, but the gifts that are being brought home this Yuletide by the youngsters in Room 10 at Sepulveda Elementary School bear all the sophisticated earmarks of articles being sold over the high-priced and high-styled Christmas decoration counters of local commercial establishments.

Students in Mrs. Billie Bristlin's seventh and eighth grade art classes decided this year to try their hands at the do-it-yourself decorations gracing the pages of the holiday issues of adult popular magazines.

Result is an eye-catching array of styrofoamed, tinsel, and gilded treasures which would make the manager of any boutique shop sit up and take notice.

Christmas trees made of toothpicks sprayed with artificial snow, red and white Santa Claus made of sprayed magazines, wreaths, angels, mangers, candles, carousels, marshmallow houses, candy trains, and a wintry skating scene are typical of the creative holiday handiwork the students have produced.
