

Chapel Theatre Premier Of 'The Ebonite' Slated

A special champagne opening has been scheduled Friday, Feb. 17, for the world premier of "The Ebonite," a new play by Luther Whitsitt of San Pedro.

Chapel Theatre will premier the new work, which has been so well received that Whitsitt has been commissioned to do a television script on the basis of one reading of "The Ebonite."

Tony Baynes of Los Angeles, a resident director of the Los Angeles Savoy-Artes Gilbert and Sullivan Repertory Company, returns to Chapel Theatre to direct "The Ebonite." Baynes has scored solid hits at Chapel with "Sunday in New York" and "The Fantasticks" and operates his own little theatre, The Quivera, in San Pedro.

Baynes is a graduate of California State College at Long Beach.

Whitsitt, a teacher and a Negro, brings a new view to the ancient conflict of the dark man in a white man's world. "The Ebonite" is the story of "the simple everyday living of a Negro whose only goal is to be able to share the world's treasures—love, joy, hope, family, and friends—on the same level as the white folk." Betty Schroeder, Chapel Theatre public relations chairman, explained.

"Whitsitt, being a Negro, has provided a new picture of the problems and mixed emotions his own people face within themselves in the world of white man," she added.

The premier performance will be followed by productions for five consecutive weekends. Curtain is 8:30 p.m. on Fridays and Saturdays and 8 p.m. on Sundays.

Reservations may be secured by calling the Chapel Theatre box office. The theatre is located at 4164 W. Pacific Coast Hwy.
