

A Witch by Any Other Name Is Still a Witch

A witch by any other name is known as the jealous, possessive wife. With your constant nagging, your suspicious imaginings, you are bent on the destruction of yourself, your beast and your marriage.

You always succeed, much to your own sorrow. Jealousy is a passion. It has two other sisters, fear and hate.

But if he's running around,

COUNT MARCO

you can't ignore it either. To be always broadminded, all-for-giving can be carried a bit too far, not only for yourself but for him, too.

If he has started playing the eyes-across-the-room routine and flirting with all the women in sight, don't make a fuss about it yet; just make a note of it.

If he's finding work more interesting than you, and coming home later and later, heed the warning sign.

Don't wave the white flag of surrender and give up altogether. Maybe he's just testing. What he's doing is the obvious thing. He wants you to notice it. And because he's so outward about it, it still is in the controllable stage.

What he really wants from you is a bit more attention. He wants you to notice him and reassure him that you won't let him make a mistake.

This is no time to throw yourself into bitter scenes or tantrums or freeze him out. Nor do you want him to feel like the prize he'd of the year. And, above all, never, never poke fun at him.

Neither should you brush the whole thing lightly aside. If you ignore all his signals, he may get the impression you don't care or consider him so unattractive and unappealing that you feel you needn't worry. He'll do all in his power to prove differently.

Now is the time for a cool head and a steady hand. But don't let him know how cool and steady you are.

The little green-eyed monster, applied in very small and carefully controlled doses, can be wonderfully flattering to his ego.

Remember when to him you were the most wonderful, desirable creature on earth? He was positive every male who glanced twice at you had designs.

Weren't you flattered? Of course. There's a world of difference between the "I saw the way you looked at her" and "I saw the way she looked at you" approach. Try it.

When you've put him through the wringer, but gently, as you would your best lingerie, forgive him. Once forgiven, start remembering all those little attentions to him that you've neglected recently. He'll never want to stray because he's needed, wanted and, best of all, admired.

This is his security. And yours, too.

Students Schedule Jazz Date

Jazz will be featured in Harbor College's Fine Arts Festival when student musicians take the stage Thursday at 8 p.m. in the Seahawk Center.

The college's Studio Jazz Band, under the direction of Robin DeVour, will perform arrangements with the "big band" sound, including some original compositions by Harbor music majors.

Also featured will be the Pied Piper Quartet, a jazz vocal group. Soloists include Pat Hodges, drummer Manuel Mosquera, pianist George Mercer, and award-winning guitarist Larry Carlton.

Some students from local high schools, members of the evening band class, will also perform.

Refreshments will be served after the concert and jazz record albums will be given away as door prizes. The community is invited to this event free of charge.

HONORED... William A. Barr (left), director of the Los Angeles County Department of Hospitals, accepts the National Management Association's Silver Knight award from Robert Cash, president of the association's Harbor General Hospital Management Club. Barr was honored for his years of service and high professional standards in the field of management.

South Side

By Lynne Alessio

"A Decade of Golden Moments," the theme for the Junior-Senior Prom, commemorated South High's 10-year anniversary.

Originally scheduled at Ft. MacArthur, this annual dance was held Friday at the Pacific Coast Club in Long Beach. The change was made when the Officers' Club near Terminal Island was condemned.

SPARTAN Junior Christine Baxter recently won first place in the "Atlantic Monthly" National Creative Writing Contest for her poem, "So Much Warm."

For this Chris received a $100 check and her work will be published with other contest winners in the magazine. It, too, will be featured in "Analecta," South's literary magazine, when it is released the first week in June.

The semi-annual Capri and Bermuda Day, sponsored by the Girls' and Boys' Leagues, was held on campus Friday. This event allows those girls and boys who buy tickets for 15 cents to wear either capris or bermudas that day only. A 25-cent fine is charged to those wearing the "out of the ordinary" who have not bought a ticket.

THE SEVENTH annual Art Competition has ended. Prizes were awarded to Mary Salatin, crafts; Erkki Leikoski, photography; Martha Correl, oils; Bruce Campbell, drawing; Chuck Akins, collage; Bruce Campbell, mixed media; Rodney Smith, jewelry; Gary Hill, sculpture; Bruce Campbell, illustration; Mike Huetter, design; Mary Fong, printmaking; Claudia Kline, watercolor.

Money Program Record Set

The city's lucrative capital investment program hit an all-time high during the month of April, earning more than $900 a day for local taxpayers.

City Treasurer Thomas Rupert, program manager, said total earnings for April amounted to $27,053.17, which comes to exactly $901.77 per day. Average daily investment was $6,088.416, earning at a rate of 5.406 per cent.

"I asked them to take me off salary and put me on 10 per cent," Rupert joshed, "but they turned me down!"

The city treasurer noted that his investment of idle Redevelopment Agency funds earned an additional $400 per day last month.

Wins Award

Barbara Moffitt, 16, a junior at Torrance High School, has received honorable mention for a short-story story submitted for the Scholastic Magazine Writing Contest.

Utility Employee Retires

Herman Workman, of Torrance, ended a career of more than three decades with the Southern California Gas Company when he retired May 1.

A native of Tennessee, Workman came to California in 1931 and began work with the gas company in 1934. He is a member of Valley Forge Masonic Lodge 587.

Workman and his wife, Eula, plan to spend plenty of time working around their home and gardening during the months ahead. Workman also hopes to attend a variety of sporting events.

Hospital Director Seminar Set for Nurses

Harbor General Hospital Management Club held its First Annual Awards Dinner Wednesday, presenting William A. Barr with the National Management Association's Silver Knight Award.

The guest of honor, who is director of the Los Angeles County Department of Hospitals, earned the award through years of high professional standards in the field of management.

The Harbor General Hospital Management Club is the first such club within a hospital affiliated with the National Management Association. The banquet was held in observance of National Hospital Week, May 12 through 18.

Barr is responsible for the supervision of nine hospitals in which nearly 20,000 persons are employed. He is also active in many civic and welfare organizations.

Area nurses will learn about a subject "close to their hearts" next Tuesday when the Los Angeles County Heart Association's Southwestern Branch will host an evening heart information program for nurses at Torrance High School.

According to Dr. Steve C. K. Liu, cardiologist at Harbor General Hospital and local heart leader, more than 30 registered nurses will become informed about a nurse's role in cardiopulmonary resuscitation, a life-saving emergency method that would determine life or death.

Dr. Liu, the local Heart Branch's professional education chairman, said Dr. Phillip M. Halloran will teach the nurses CPR methods of saving hearts that temporarily stopped by an accident or such emergency.

Further information about Heart's Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation programs may be obtained by contacting the Heart Association's Southwestern Branch, 16811 S. Hawthorne Blvd., Lawndale.
