

100 Future Teachers To Train in Torrance

One hundred college students who plan to enter the teaching profession are currently receiving part of their training in Torrance classrooms, according to Dr. Robert Morton, assistant superintendent. Included in the groups are student teachers, interns, and undergraduates enrolled in observation courses. They are from California State College at Long Beach and the University of Southern California. Student teachers have been assigned to five elementary schools: Fern-Greenwood, Levy, Flavian, Hickory and Victor—and the four high schools in the Torrance Unified School District. Courses in which student teachers are participating at the high schools include: Spanish, English, history, physical education, art, mathematics, and electronics. Preparatory for entering the regular student teacher program next semester, 10 teacher aides are assisting in local classrooms this semester. Sixty-one enrollees in observation classes are currently getting a first-hand view of how Torrance teachers fill their roles as a pre-requisite to becoming student teachers.
