

Spring Start Slated for Second Tower

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I celebrated my 25th wedding anniversary recently by sitting in the living room alone watching TV. My husband sat in the dining room and listened to the radio. He hasn't spoken to me in three weeks. When he had his last temper tantrum he said I answered him sharply. Now he is drinking himself into a stupor. He does that about four or five times a year. His drinking spree last from two weeks to a month.

My husband spends most of the winter in bed because he makes enough money so he doesn't have to work all year 'round, yet he criticizes me because I "waste time" on the phone. I keep my home neat and clean and take good care of the children. He is fairly good to them although he blows up at the older one, just as he does with me.

I know I cannot change my husband so I have quit trying. I know, too, that you cannot help me—or him. I guess I had to write because I need someone to confide in. Thank you for listening.—LANSING

Dear Lansing: If you REALLY want to help yourself and your husband, write to Al-Anon. The national headquarters is P.O. Box 182, Madison Square Station, New York, N.Y. 10010. You may not be able to cure him of his alcoholism but you will learn how to have a decent life in spite of it. Furthermore, you will meet many courageous women who have learned to function within the framework of a husband's illness.

Dear Ann Landers: My cousin came to visit last week and brought her two children aged 8 and 10. Our children are 7, 9 and 11. When we sat down to dinner the first night, Mary hauled out a small portable TV set and placed it on the table. I asked her what she was doing. "Oh," she replied, "We always look at TV during dinner. It keeps the kids quiet." With that she flicked on a western and brought the thundering herd and shooting sheriff of Braintree County right into our dining room.

When I told Mary we didn't allow TV during meals, she was not only shocked but indignant. She said dinner time used to give her the screaming meemies. The kids fought and yelled and more food ended up on the floor than in their stomachs. Now there is none of that. I agree it's worth a lot to keep kids quiet at mealtime but I don't go along with her methods. Please comment.—MASS. MOTHER

Dear Mother: If you clapped an ether cone over their noses that would also quiet the kids, but I wouldn't recommend it. Dinner time is the best time for the family to exchange ideas and BE a family. It is frightening how many parents permit their children to watch anything just to keep them quiet. If the only way Mary can get her children to behave in a civilized manner at the table is to put on the TV, she has failed them miserably.

Dear Ann Landers: Our son is 22, has his Army service behind him and will finish trade school in March. He met a girl who is 18 and looks like a hippie. She dropped out of high school and does not work because she must "think things through." If she works she cannot pay enough attention to her "thinking."

Yesterday our son said he wants to marry this girl but he can't afford an apartment. He asked if we would let them both stay in his room. The boy has never caused us any trouble. He is a gentle person and we think he just feels sorry for this girl. What shall we do? —PENNSYLVANIA PROBLEM

Dear Pennsylv: The boy is of legal age and there is nothing you can do to stop him from making his own bed. But it doesn't have to be in your house.

Without knocking the girl, simply tell him you hope he will not get married until he can afford to make a home for himself and his wife.

Construction of the 13-story Bank of America Tower in the Del Amo Financial Center will begin this spring, two years ahead of schedule, Great Lakes Realty Corp. announced this week.

The tower represents the second phase of construction at the center. Its start has been accelerated as a result of significant success in leasing the first portion, according to marketing director Craig Ruth.

The Bank of America opened its Torrance main office in one of the center's pavilion buildings Jan. 2 and will move into the tower building upon its completion in mid-1969.

Ultimately the Del Amo Financial Center, designed by Victor Gruen Associates, will have one million square feet of office space in three 13-story towers, three five-story ring buildings and several pavilions in a circular setting around one million square feet of decked parking area.

It will represent an investment of more than $30 million by the Rancho-Glazer Corp., a joint venture of Great Lakes Properties, Inc., and Guilford Glazer and Associates. The property is managed by Great Lakes Realty, a subsidiary of Great Lakes Properties.

Phase I of the center—consisting of 315,000 square feet, including the 13-story Union Bank Tower—was opened last Sept. 27.

In the intervening period tenants moving into the center, in addition to Union Bank and Bank of America, are United California Bank, Western Federal Savings & Loan and such prominent stock brokerage firms as E. F. Hutton and Bateman Eichler, Hill Richards.

Ruth commented that with these tenants the Del Amo Fi-ancial Center is already the largest one-stop financial center in the West.

"We are calling the Del Amo Financial Center 'Wall Street West' because it will have five or more major banks seven or more brokerage houses, two or more title companies, an airline and travel center, major corporate headquarters and major law and accounting firms," he said.

Tenants in the building also have access to two computer installations—IBM for commercial data processing and Control Data for scientific computing.

COUNT MARCO

The Tall Girls Shouldn't Slump

The only problems you tall girls should have is beating off men. After he gets over the first shock of looking up to you all the time, he respects and admires height because he finally realizes what it means to have his woman on a pedestal.

But, for heaven's sake, don't try to shrink yourself. Too many of you seem to have the idea that your height is something to be ashamed of, and so you creep around in flat shoes, slumped over, head down like a wilted flower.

Stop it, right now. Straighten those shoulders, throw out your chest, and let the world admire what nature gave you. Wear high heels, big hats, attractive hair styles.

It takes height to achieve the exotic and regal look that is irresistible. You tall girls are more glamorous and luckier than your shorter sisters. You can wear the unusual styles that catch the eye and make the male heart beat faster. The styles that make a tiny woman look ridiculous.

If you're a tall teenager whose relatives and friends tease "Haven't you stopped growing yet?" don't crouch yourself into a complex. Just build yourself a fast comeback and sail serenely on your way.

Remember that tall girls are more sympathetic and understanding of men. Perhaps their mother instincts are more aroused when they can look down on a man and cuddle him. But don't overdo that, either. The woman-dominated marriage is never a really happy one. Every true woman wants to be dominated by the man she marries. She wants him to tell her where, when and what to do.

Only with a man who is a leader at work and the boss at home can a woman know real happiness. Too many of you American wives take your husbands by the hand, show them what to do, and actually make their decision for them.

Don't do it. The taller you are, the more graciously feminine you should be. The feminine forte is handling the little details of everyday life and leaving the decisions to the man in your life.

Never be ashamed of being tall. Being tall is the way to popularity and it's fashionable. So, dress the part and have fun.

Dog Shot For Biting Youngsters

Six Torrance children were bitten Saturday afternoon by a marauding mongrel dog in the vicinity of 168th Street and Yukon Avenue.

Torrance police tried unsuccessfully to catch the dog and were finally forced to shoot it when it wandered onto the Alondra Golf Course.

Reported bitten by the reddish-brown animal were Robert Gordon, 6; Gary Lawson, 8; Joyce Condon, 12; and Philip Hendrix, 13. Two other unidentified children were also attacked.

The dog's body was turned over to SPCA officials to determine whether or not it had rabies. Results of the test are not yet known.

If the dog was rabid, the children may have to undergo the painful Pasteur treatment.

EC Group Names New President

Darrell White will be installed tomorrow as president of the El Camino College Chapter 453 of the California School Employees Association.

Installation ceremonies are scheduled for 7:30 p.m. in the maintenance lunch room at the college.

Irene Perry, regional representative, and Harry Hasler, field representative, both from the CSEA, will install the new officers.

To be installed with White are Paul R. Galvan, first vice president; John L. Reynolds, second vice president; E. Cleo England, secretary; Richard A. Perkins, treasurer; and George H. Charland, reporter and publicity chairman.

Redondo Man Breaks Wrist In Mishap

A Redondo Beach man suffered a broken left wrist and numerous cuts and abrasions when he lost control of his motorcycle late Saturday night.

Gerald E. Bons, 33, of 504 Phelan, Redondo Beach, was cycling north on Western Avenue near 178th Street when he fell to the pavement. He was taken by ambulance to Gardena Memorial Hospital.

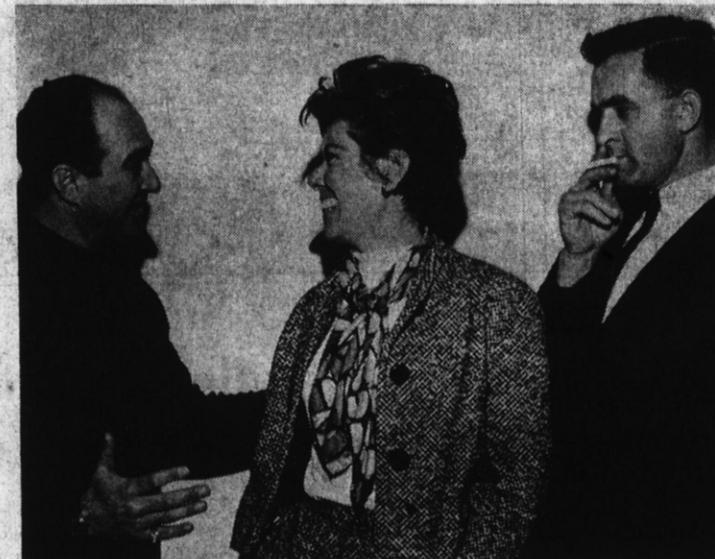

Election Fee Hiked By Council

The fee for a municipal candidate's qualification statement has been raised from $75 to $100 by the Torrance City Council. This payment covers printing expenses for a candidate's 150-word statement which is mailed to all voters along with their sample ballots.

If a candidate does not wish to have his qualification statement mailed to voters, he does not have to pay the fee, according to City Clerk Vernon W. Coil.

The money must be paid in advance of the election and any amount left over after printing costs will be divided among candidates. On the other hand, candidates will be required to pay additional funds if printing expenses should run higher than the $100.

Coil had asked the City Council to boost the statement fee to $125.

OPEN NEW THEATER . . . Murray Rubin, Margaret Middleton, and Jack Drake are pictured during rehearsals for Chapel Theatre's production of "After the Fall," a play by Arthur Miller. The production, first in Chapel's new theater at 2222 W. Lomita Blvd., will open Friday, Jan. 26, for a five-weekend run. Performances are at 8:30 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays and 8 p.m. Sundays. Lou Bruhnke will direct "After the Fall."

Los Angeles Orchestra Will Appear at College

Culminating a week-long inaugural of El Camino College's new auditorium, the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra, under the direction of Lawrence Foster, will perform Saturday at 8:30 p.m. Tickets for the Philharmonics first appearance on the EC campus range from $4 to $25 for the public. El Camino students and faculty members will receive a 75-cent reduction in price.

Dr. Robert Haag, coordinator of community services, stated that in the past the college lacked the facilities to accommodate the 105-piece orchestra, but now with the new auditorium, which will seat 2,056 persons, there is no problem.

During the summer of 1966, Foster was the recipient of the Koussevitsky Memorial Conducting Prize and the Eleanor R. Crane Memorial Prize at Tanglewood's Berkshire Festival in Massachusetts. During the past several years Foster conducted at the Stuttgart Opera and the Melos Ensemble in England, as well as British Broadcasting Corp. broadcasts of the Melos Ensemble and the English Chamber Orchestra. Foster made a second trip to London in the summer of 1966 for another conducting stint over the BBC. Tickets are on sale at the college bookstore and will also be sold as available at the box office the evening of the concert.

Youth Concert Slated

Violinist Emily Karr, a senior at South High School, will be the featured artist for the annual youth concert of the Beach Cities Symphony Orchestra Friday evening.

Louis Palange, musical director of the orchestra, will conduct the program at the Mira Costa High School auditorium in Manhattan Beach. The program will begin at 8:15 and admission is free.

Forty students of violin will perform the Concerto in A Minor by Vivaldi. Elizabeth Holborn, assistant concertmaster of the orchestra, and Ruth Bialasky have been working with the students.

A preview concert for school children will be given tomorrow at 3:45 p.m. in the school auditorium. Calvin Greer, El Camino College music director, will conduct.

Miss Karr will perform Mozart's "Concerto in G Minor." The 17-year-old violinist has studied during the past four years with Joachim Chassman of Los Angeles. She was a member of the Los Angeles Debut Orchestra and a winner in the Congress of Strings competition of the American Federation of Musicians.

Other selections on Friday's program will include Wagner's Prelude to "Die Meistersinger," Haydn's "Toy Symphony," Grieg's "Peer Gynt Suite No. 1," and Rubinstein's "Kamenoi Ostrow."

Show Cartoons

The 1963 Academy Award winning cartoon, "The Critic," will be shown Wednesday, Jan. 31, at 8 p.m. in Seahawk Center, Harbor College, 1111 Figueroa Place, Wilmington. Three other cartoons, "The Tell-Tale Heart," and "A Unicorn in the Garden," and "Death and Sunrise" also will be shown. Admission is free.

Torrance Minister Calls It 'An Interesting Life'

H. MILTON SIPPEL

From the throes of a Bonnie-and-Clyde shoot-up to the serenity of a summer rose garden, the Rev. H. Milton Sippel calls it an interesting life. Twice as interesting as storybooks ordinarily allow a minister's life to be, in fact.

Anything but a stereotype, the Rev. Sippel is secretly proud of the knowledge that he comes about as close as anyone to being the proverbial self-made man. A high school drop-out at the age of 17, he forged his life and his career independent of parental kibbutzing. And a minister brought up in a non-church environment, after all, is not the most ordinary thing.

After 13 years as pastor of the First Christian Church of Torrance, the Rev. Sippel can pause a moment to glance back over a long and varied life. On his own since quitting high school, the venturesome teenager left his hometown of Rochester, N.Y., for a two-year stint with the U.S. Coast

A. P. Giannini, founder of the Bank of America, in San Francisco.

Giannini took a dim view of formalized education, advising the youth to enter business rather than return to school. A year or two of practical experience would be far more valuable than the classroom, the banker thought. Giannini even offered him a banking position.

The young sureyor had other ideas for his future, however. Interested in religion since the age of 13, the Rev. Sippel left the Geodetic Survey to attend Northwestern Bible School in Minneapolis. It was during this chapter in his life that he decided to become a minister.

Finishing high school, the Rev. Sippel decided to head south for college. The South had always interested him and he wanted to learn about its problems first hand. However, he eventually decided (Continued on Page C-3)

THE PHILHARMONIC performance will serve as a warm-up for the orchestra's three-week tour of the East Coast in April. The orchestra will play in 11 cities during the tour.

Selections to be played by the philharmonic include Rossini's "Overture to La Gioia," Charles Ives' "Decoration Day," Strauss' "Til Eenspiegel," and Schumann's "Symphony No. 2."

The philharmonic, founded almost a half a century ago, has played in 80 cities from San Diego to Vancouver, B.C., on the west coast. The orchestra has appeared in most major cities from Los Angeles to Denver.

CONDUCTING Saturday's performance, Foster begins

Hahn to Speak At Lions' Meet

Supervisor Kenneth Hahn is scheduled to speak at the Gardena Valley Lions Community Government Dinner Monday at 6:30 p.m.

The meeting will be held at the Alondra Club, 16411 Prairie Ave., according to Gardena City Councilman Donald H. Davidson.
