Education Unit Sets Meeting

The South Bay Chapter of Phi Delta Kappa, an honorary fraternity for men in education, will meet Wednesday, March 6, at the Crown Imperial Restaurant in El Segundo. Dr. Harold Widney of Torrance, president of the group, said newsman Dan Moore, education writer for the Los Angeles Times, will be the featured speaker. Moore will discuss "The Changing Role of the Educator in Southern California."

money for the university and state colleges are proposed, the plaint that "politics is being injected into education," is revived.

This year is no exception. Educators are something like children who throw a tantrum when they can't get what they want, and use devious means to accomplish their purposes.

So it is with the resignation of John Summerskill, president of San Francisco state college, who resigns his position with the comment that "I don't think Governor Reagan is particularly interested in building higher education in California."

Hunt for Theme

Torrance area residents have been invited to submit their ideas for a theme for the 1969 Tournament of Roses Parade. Suggestions should be written on a post card and mailed to the Tournament of Roses Association at 391 S. Orange Grove Blvd., Pasadena 91105. Deadline is March 31.

burdensome enough to cause concern. Such a point has been reached, and the impact will be worse in April, when the new method of collecting income tax at levels of 100 percent or more above last year, is brought home in the form of almost confiscatory drains on the bank account.

HE CRITICIZED the Reagan administration for an "inadequate" and inflexible budget for both the university and state colleges, and claims "the colleges are vulnerable to politics at every turn."

California's taxpayers have heard the same song for years, and perhaps have paid but little attention in view of the fact they had not reached the point where the money they put up for education, and other activities of government, was becoming hard to determine the needs of the educational institutions for the simple reason, if nothing else, that educational administrators are noted for being anything but forthright in their dealings when it comes to fiscal matters."

California already is a big spender when it comes to education, as noted by A. Alan Post, legislative analyst in his comments on the budget. He pointed out that more than $2 billion is slated for all aspects of education, accounting for 36.4 percent of the total budget, and 53.2 percent of the general fund portion.

IT WOULD SEEM then, that the educational fraternity needs to find it about time to realize that ability to pay is a consideration in meeting their demands.

As Senator Hugh M. Burns said in a recent press conference "their theory (the educators) is that there's nothing wrong with education that money won't cure. Just give us some money and we'll take care of the problems."

which indicates they have a considerable amount of the total porridge, but persist in holding out their plates for more, despite the fact that the serving dish is empty.

And when it looks like there may not be any more, the educators raise the issue of politics in education, and claim as did Summerskill that "the public trust in competent educators is being undermined" because the administration fails to give higher education constructive leadership.

THE STATE colleges are slated for more than $225 million, and the university for more than $283 million,

Walteria Students Get Quick Tour of Hospital

If a trip to the hospital became a necessity for any of the first grade students at Walteria Elementary School, it's a safe bet that the prospect won't scare the youngsters involved.

Recently, to help eliminate the fears 6-year-olds have concerning hospitals, teachers of the school's three first grade classes asked the school nurse to arrange a tour of Harbor General Hospital.

For 100 youngsters and their chaperones, the tour began as they walked through an underground tunnel connecting departments. High light of the trip for many of the children was the visit to the hospital laundry where they saw oversize dryers and other equipment in operation. In addition to touring part of the facilities, they also saw slides of various departments of the hospital.

Teachers participating in the tour were: Mrs. Shirley Cullum, Mrs. Carol Cooley, and Mrs. Judith Pendrick.
