A Good Waitress Also Makes a Good Wife

A good waitress makes a good wife. Maybe that's why there are so many ex-wives working as terrible waitresses. However, I have no definite proof that an ex-terrible wife can't learn to be a good waitress and thus become good wife material.

Waitresses, being women, do not escape my eagle-eyed scrutiny. Sometimes I speculate about them, like those who slop the food all at once on the table and disappear until check time. I speculate as to whether or not they've broken a leg, and hope that they have.

And then there are the truly good ones who make all men return again and again to a restaurant whose food is obviously substandard.

Every man likes to be served well. Take a few tips on how to be a good waitress and one fine day you may find yourself once again on the receiving end of the menu instead of the handing-out end. A good waitress greets every customer with a smile and a pleasant greeting, no matter how much her feet hurt. She recognizes them as guests and makes them feel truly welcome.

Think of yourself as a hostess at home. After a warm welcome, suggest a cocktail immediately. Make it friendly: "How about a nice relaxing cocktail or highball after your busy day?"

That's the kind of language men understand and the encouragement they need. It also gives them time to study the menu while you're tending to your other diners. If no cocktails are served in your establishment, suggest coffee are tea.

If you have your mind on your job, a diner should never have to signal for another glass of water, bread, butter, coffee or whatever you have. But it happens time and again. No matter how busy you may think you are, a quick detour toward your other tables will often suffice to keep them contented until you can give them more time.

A good waitress knows her menu. I know it's a constant battle between you and the kitchen urging "push the codfish," which you know has as much appeal as last week's liver. But it's your table and they're your guests, so a short tour of the kitchen before you start your shift will help immeasurably. Also check with your diners as to what they really think about the dish they ordered. What's left on their plate will help you make up your mind what to recommend later to other diners.

An exceptionally good waitress never concludes with "Will that be all?" She suggests sweetly, "Would you like a final cup of coffee, an after-dinner drink, perhaps?" Anything which makes them feel she's sorry to see them go.

And she does not hover over the table while the diner is getting his money ready for the check, hoping he'll be embarrassed into leaving a larger tip.

GREET QUEEN... Supervisor Burton W. Chace talks with Sherry Lee Mowell, Miss Los Angeles County of 1968, following her selection as queen. Miss Mowell will serve as the official hostess for the county and represent Los Angeles County in the Maid of California contest.

Students Volunteer At School

During the last weeks of summer vacation, when most teenagers were trying to squeeze the last ounce of enjoyment from their vanishing free days, more than 60 students were working on a volunteer basis at Alexander Fleming Junior High School.

Two service groups, the Ladies and the Archers, provided members to work for the school in the textbook room.

Students participating in this service were Ladies Joni Alford, Gudrun Balzer, Donna Beck, Sandy Bello, DeSheila Brown, Terri Boller, Jana Carenen, Donna Catt, Sheri DeRusha, Karen Ginter, Lorraine Gonzales, Fay Ishibashi, JoAnn Iwai, Anna Kosch, Nancy Luevano, Nancy Nelson, Genise Nielson, Catherine Peterson, Kathleen Peterson, Gloria Sanchez, Marie Sa-Hagen, Diane Sands, Barbara Stuckey, Rita Stuckey, Elaine Tichenor, Jo Ann Trygstad, Denise Vickers, Ann Walker, and Linda Yang.

Archers helping were Sharon Abbott, Heidi Ackermann, Marcia Ashworth, Gloria Balzer, Janet Belk, Sharleen Bennett, Robin Berish, Deanna Catt, Cynthia Cowan, Catherine Dawdy, Maureen Duroux, Donna Eto, Joan Finney, Shirley Goodin, Susan Griest, Teresa Grudzinskas, Gail Ho, Lori Hulbert, Janice Kariya, Brenda Littleton, Vivian Lucero, Debbie Main, Janet Mason, Judy Morioka, Janice Peterson, Jane Scranton, Juanita Shofner, Irene Sueda, Alice Wong, Peggy Wulbern, and Kathy Wulff.

Collision Totals Vehicles

Three area youths were hospitalized Tuesday afternoon following a traffic accident which totally demolished both vehicles involved.

Rushed to Little Company of Mary Hospital for treatment of severe head lacerations and an injured jaw was Norman C. Wagner, 19, of 222 Harbor Hills, Lomita.

Wagner was driving a delivery van south on Anza Avenue, preparing to turn

DRIVER OF the car was Eugene Lee Hendricks, 19, of 3618 W. 227th St., who suffered lacerations, Hendricks' passenger, George Hagerman of 3611 W. 226th St., sustained two broken ribs and a severely lacerated left arm. Both were treated at Little Company of Mary Hospital.

Police said Hendricks had no drivers' license in his possession at the time of the collision. However, there was a letter on the seat of the car stating that his license had been suspended in August, police said.

Officers at the scene recommended Hendricks be cited for driving without a license.

'Infancy Stage' Over For Dominguez Hills

California State College, Dominguez Hills, is no longer in its infancy. Fall registration has pushed student enrollment to well over 1,000, and the college will open classes Oct. 14 in new, permanent buildings.

In fact, everything is "times 2" at Dominguez this year. Faculty, student body, course offerings, and facilities—all have doubled for the fall quarter. By December, three additional major buildings will be under construction.

Located on the south side of Victoria Street, on the east side of the future entry to the campus, the initial buildings are easily accessible to visitors and students. Thirteen buildings comprise the complex of initial buildings with 76,000 gross square feet of area.

Facilities include a library, food service, administration, non-instructional, and instructional areas for all three disciplines.

The initial buildings serve the long-range goal of housing the special "Small College" which will have 500 students. The Small College becomes a vital part of the Dominguez Hills curriculum. Its experimental work may contribute considerably to development of education throughout the state sometime in the future. This Small College facility will house the Dominguez Hills students for two years. Beginning in 1970, greatly expanded classroom buildings will become available.
