

Hahn Opposes Plan to Sell Beer, Liquor at Coliseum, Sports Arena

"I will fight the attempt by the beer industry to sell beer in the Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum and Memorial Sports Arena," Supervisor Kenneth Hahn declared today.

Hahn, senior member of the Coliseum Commission, said he was surprised to learn of a recent motion initiating a study of the possibility of serving beer in Los Angeles' two finest arenas.

Commissioner A. E. England moved for the study and Supervisor Warren Dorn seconded the motion during a meeting when Hahn was absent. (Hahn was attending a Marine Corps Recruit Training graduation ceremony in San Diego.)

SUPERVISOR HAHN said he opposed the sale of beer or liquor in the two athletic stadiums because both facilities are dedicated as living memorials to soldiers who died defending this nation.

He pointed out that throughout his 16 years as a Coliseum commissioner there have been attempts by the liquor industry to sell alcoholic beverages at the Coliseum and Sports Arena.

"There are more than 13,700 liquor licenses issued in Los Angeles County where people can buy liquor and beer if they wish. I think that is almost too many and there is no need adding more public facilities to the list," Hahn stressed.

"I'VE NEVER heard of anyone not attending an event in the Sports Arena or Coliseum because they couldn't get a beer.

"In fact, more families come to these facilities together and enjoy them because liquor is not sold. They are glad not to be disturbed by drunks," he stressed.

In the past, Hahn blocked the attempt by Walter O'Malley to sell beer in the Coliseum when the Dodgers came to Los Angeles in 1958.
