It is most interesting to note that even our language has gone to the dogs! For example, you may wake up some morning dog tired from standing the dog watch with the baby, only to have your wife hound you for a new poodle cloth coat to go with her poodle hair-do. You see she wants to put on the dog at her club meeting tomorrow.

Over breakfast, she informs you that you'll be having hush-puppies for supper. Your daughter, who is in the throes of puppy-love, comes to the table with a hang-dog expression because her latest boy friend has stopped dogging her trail.

YOUR other youngster is no place in sight. He's either secluded in his puppet, dog-trotting over to the neighbors, or dog-paddling around the pool.

After breakfast, you begin wondering what you should put on for tennis. Since it's apt to be one of those dog days, it will be too hot for your new houndstooth sports jacket. To take your mind off it, you reach for a book a legal-beagle friend loaned you. It's all dog-eared!

So you reach for the collection of shaggy-dog tales you brought home recently. But it's not around and all you can find is your wife's volume of doggerel. You just get started reading when your wife calls you to fix a leaky faucet. Since she is blessed with dogged determination, you'd better do as she says or you'll find yourself in the dog house and that always leaves you feeling sick as a dog. And that's for dog-gone sure!

A LONDON, England, food market provides branches with chains and padlocks for now and then now and in parking pets while their owner shop. Would't such a gesture as a God-send in Southern California? On signal from his owner Frances Remington of Los Angeles, Ko Ko U.D., a miniature Poodle, answers the phone and speaks into the receiver.

The world's largest dog team, with 67 dogs, was hitched up for the celebration of the Alaska "69" Exposition... A dog can learn to do almost anything, for he is possibly, the cleverest creature alive... Motion picture star Richard Boone is an avid Australian Shepherd fancier. Greer Garson favors the Poodle and Johnny Carson goes for the Maltese.

BREED OF THE WEEK— Most folks who dig deep into the fascinating annals of dogdom agree that the Maltese is one of the oldest breeds of dog on record and I might add that these darling little denizens of the bow wow universe were cherished pets of the women folks of ancient Greece and Rome many centuries before Christ.

For all time the breed has been purposely kept small. They have been described in centuries long since forgotten as being not much larger than ferrets or squirrels. Sometimes the breed is referred to as the Maltese Terrier. This name is definitely incorrect for although they are classified in the Toy Group, the Maltese are spaniels and not terrier. How about that?

IT IS MOST important when buying a dog, especially your first, to analyze yourself. Have you really considered just what it means to own a dog? Are you prepared for man's best friend?

An old friend of mine who has been professionally engaged in dogs for many years once told me, "There is no law to govern the buying of dogs, but there should be one to force owners of dogs to take intelligent care of them."

BARKS AND YIPS — A dog named Ginger who can sniff out drugs is tracking down narcotics shippers in Los Angeles. Ginger, a 4-year-old German Shepherd, demonstrated an uncanny ability to locate marijuana in two months of testing of 400 dogs by the narcotics squad of the LAPD. During a four-month period, Ginger was trained to paw and exhibit excited behavior when she detected the telltale scent of marijuana. So far this canine sleuth has stifled the schemes of 35 persons attempting to ship 125 pounds of the outlawed drug from International Airport. Ginger is so successful that the underworld has put out a contract, or agreement to have a gunman kill her. Ginger is leased from Continental Canines, Inc. of Los Angeles.

THE MALTESE is one of the hardest of the toy breeds of dog and adapts himself easily to almost any type of climate or environment.

Interest in the Maltese is gradually returning to their former popularity. This is partly due to the importation of several specimens from overseas.

These imports have chalked up creditable show records and should do much to focus attention on these lovely little dogs.

The Maltese tips the scales at about 4 pounds and in height 5 inches.

Dorothy Tinker of 114 Las Vegas Blvd, South Las Vegas, Nev., has done much to spotlight these quaint little canine beauts before the eyes of the West Coast dog fanciers.

Townsend Thanks Voters, Workers

Assemblyman L. E. (Larry) Townsend, re-elected in the 67th Assembly District last Tuesday, has expressed his appreciation to voters and campaign workers for their efforts in his behalf.

In a statement released this week, Townsend, who won a 7,000-vote plurality, also pledged to work for "re-distribution of the overall tax load to give substantial long-range relief to the homeowner and small property taxpayer."

The full text of Townsend's statement follows: "I am grateful for this opportunity to express my personal thanks to the voters of the 67th Assembly District for giving me a home ownership and small property taxpayer.

7,000 votes and to the many wonderful campaign supporters who worked long and hard toward my re-election. "We have not fully evaluated the impact of the statewide results in the various Assembly and State Senate races as they might affect the reorganization of the legislature.

"Despite the failure of Proposition 9, I am more convinced than ever that the legislature must work more closely with local government to eliminate the duplication of services and focus its full attention to re-distribution of the overall tax load to give substantial long-range relief to the home owner and small property taxpayer.
