Neglected Children Found

Police investigated a case of child neglect in North Torrance Friday after a neighbor tipped them off.

Arriving at 9 p.m. at a home on Haas Street, police said they found four children, ages 2 to 12, playing in and around the house. The oldest child told police his mother was working and his father was dead.

Police said the house was disheveled, with food and clothing strewn in every room. Several windows were broken, the wall heater was not functioning, and the natural gas service had been discontinued.

There was no food in the house except milk and bread. Police are looking for the children's mother.

Wife Finds Husband's Dead Body

A 53-year-old Torrance man was pronounced dead on arrival at Little Company of Mary Hospital Sunday morning after his wife discovered he was not breathing.

Pronounced dead at 8:15 a.m. was William G. White, 2210 Torrance Blvd. His wife Nina said he woke up about dawn but went back to sleep. She noticed he wasn't breathing at 7:50 a.m. and called the Torrance Fire Department.

The victim had no history of heart trouble.
